TINKHAM THANKS AMERICAN FOR ITS EXPOSURE OF LOAN SHARKS

As chairman of the Committee on Banks and Banking, which reported the anti-loan shark bill to the Legislature, I wish to thank the AMERICAN for its fearless expose of the loan sharks and their methods. The disclosures made by the AMERICAN were of valuable assistance to our committee.—Senator George Holden Tinkham.

RUSTLER REBELS OUT IN BATTLE TO FINISH

By R. W. LARDNER.

Jack Spratt will be at shortstop, Pat Flaherty in right field and Billy Jones in centre when the Rustlers face the Cubs in the first game of to-day's double-header—IF no understanding is reached between the management of the club and the two "rebels," Charley Herzog and Doc Miller.

The two mutineers are still in Boston. They have decided to remain here a few days, awaiting developments, but they were both firm this forenoon in their determination to stick to what they call their rights. Just as obdurate are President Russell and Manager Tenney. The latter will not say anything about the case beyond stating that he believes the management is only doing right and that he will not give in.

The Rustlers will not be a very formidable aggregation without this pair. This much will be admitted by the majority, regardless of the merits of the quarrel. Herzog has been practically leading the team in batting and base running, besides playing sparkling ball at short. Miller's big bat has been driving in a lot of runs for Boston. He is the Boston batsman most feared by opposing pitchers.

Boston Fans Can't Judge.

The charge of indifferent playing lodged against Herzog was made while the Rustlers were on the road. For that reason Boston fans are not in a position to judge regarding its truth. All they know is that Charley has done work here on the home grounds that could not be surpassed by any shortstop in either league. They are likely to take his side in the disagreement.

As for Doc Miller, it is known that he has been dissatisfied all Spring, not only with the size of his salary, but also with the showing of the club. He feels keenly the disgrace of the Rustlers' lowly position, and his sensitiveness has as much to do with his decision to quit as has his comparatively small pay check.

Miller is a graduate physician. He intended to go to San Francisco at the end of the present season and form a partnership with his brother. He is a specialist in diseases of the stomach and his instructors have predicted a bright future for him in this particular line.

His plan now is to go to the Pacific Coast some time this week and enter into the partnership at once, giving up baseball entirely. However, if his salary demand is met, he will play out the balance of the present year, and go to San Francisco this Fall.

There is more of a chance of a satisfactory adjustment in his case than in Herzog's. President Russell has looked with favor on the proposition to give him a substantial raise, promising him a bonus of $300 at the end of the season if he kept up to his present standard of playing. "Doc" has asked that $300 more be added on, and the boss has turned down this request. It is hoped by the partisans of both sides that a compromise will be reached.

Herzog is a Farmer.

The amount of Miller's present salary is not known. It is in the neighborhood of $2,100. He received almost as much as that in the Pacific Coast League and it cost him less to live out there because part of his family resided in San Francisco.

Herzog has a farm in Ridgeley, Md. It does not demand all his attention, for it is in capable hands. Undoubtedly Charley prefers to play ball in the Summer time to running his farm. It pays him better, and he likes the game. But he swears he will not perform again in a Boston uniform unless the $300 fine is remitted at once.

It would please Charley mightily if the powers decided to trade him, and they would have no trouble in getting other National League clubs to listen to a proposition involving him. Even the New York Giants would be glad to get him back. But the club does not propose to take any such action in the matter. It believes that the fine must "stick" or that there will be no remnant of discipline left in the team.

In Trouble Last Year.

Herzog was in similar trouble last year. Fred Lake charged him with trying to grab the management of the club and Charley was suspended for insubordination. When the team was in the South this Spring he played as if he had forgotten all about that unpleasantness. He liked the change which sent him to shortstop and he proved a wonder in that position. His work here in Boston, while a bit erratic at times, has been, as a whole, brilliant. He has covered as much ground as any shortstop Boston ever had. His batting has been hard and timely, and his base running the terror of opposing catchers.

The team will be in a bad way without these two stars, for they are stars in their respective specialties. However, the Rustlers can't lose many more games without them than they have with them, and this knowledge may have its effect on President Russell and Manager Tenney in holding to their present stand.

President Russell's Statement.

Regarding the situation President Russell has the following to say:

"Herzog told me Saturday night that he

FOSS TO SIGN LOAN SHARK BILL

Governor Foss to-day will sign the now famous Tinkham-Cavanagh anti-loan-shark bill. This will give Massachusetts the most stringent small-loan broker law in the country, and crowns with victory the movement to wipe out the money shark evil begun by the Sunday AMERICAN just three weeks ago.

The unceasing war waged against the loan sharks by the AMERICAN was one of the greatest factors in obtaining the enactment of this measure for the protection of workingmen and their families, a fact shown by the many congratulatory messages sent to this newspaper. Senator George Holden Tinkham of Boston and Representative James F. Cavanagh of Everett, who had charge of the measure, are unstinted in their praise of the AMERICAN'S work in this respect.

Tinkham Sends Thanks.

Senator Tinkham says: "As chairman of the Committee on Banks and Banking, which reported the anti-loan-shark bill to the Legislature, I wish to thank the AMERICAN for its fearless expose of the loan sharks and their methods. The disclosures made by the AMERICAN were of valuable assistance to our committee."

Representative Cavanagh, who drafted the bill, says: "Congratulations to the AMERICAN. Its decision to stop printing the misleading loan-shark advertisements, and its great expose of their methods, helped win this fight for the working people. These advertisements are socially as disreputable as the 'personals' which Uncle Sam outlawed long ago."

The wonderful victory scored by the AMERICAN when Governor Foss signed the bill is more plainly evident when one considers that only fifteen legislative days have passed since its loan-shark crusade of June 25 was started.

Not a Vote in Opposition.

So complete was the AMERICAN'S expose, and so shocking were the brutalities shown to be practised upon the poor people that not a vote was cast against the measure while it was passing through the Legislature.

The Committee on Banks and Banking, the House Committee, the House itself, the Senate Ways and Means Committee and the Senate, at every stage of the proceedings voted unanimously in favor of the bill. Nothing like it has been witnessed on Beacon Hill for years.

Members of the Legislature could not overlook the sad tale told by the widowed mother of William A. Taylor of South Boston, who was hounded to a suicide's grave by the loan sharks after borrowing $5 with which to help him take the "open air treatment" for consumption. If that were not enough to convince them of the necessity of curbing the leeches, the daily

MAYNARD GETS FOSS PAPERS

Boston Democrats who, it has been reported from time to time, were not very enthusiastic about the re-election of Governor Foss put a quietus on this story to-day when Joseph A. Maynard, president of the Democratic City Committee, went to the office of Secretary of State and got twenty-five blank nomination papers in behalf of the Governor.

"I shall circulate these papers at once," said Mr. Maynard, "in behalf of Governor Foss. The signatures are, of course, to get Governor Foss's name on the ballots and then the people want to nominate him at the polls."

Maynard is the personal representative of Martin M. Lomasney, the big Democratic leader, and his action shows that the Democrats are going to be with the Governor. To get his name on the ballot the Governor only needs 1,000 names, but he'll have many times that number. Maynard will probably turn in 2,500 or more from Boston alone. The papers must be filed by August 29.

SEEK RECORD OF MISS JOY

Sleuths from a New York detective agency were to-day in Boston looking up the musical career in this city of Mrs. Almer V. Sturtevant, formerly a student at the New England Conservatory of Music, and later known on the stage as Josephine Joy and Josephine Gibbons.

Mrs. Sturtevant, who is young and beautiful, declared that a prominent Boston broker paid her $25,000 to keep quiet about their acquaintance, and remarked that she liked to make these old coves pay for their flirtations.

The name of the Boston man is known and while he was formerly a prominent broker, he is now retired. It aws said to-day that the detectives had had an interview with him.

The detectives were also looking for another man who, Mrs. Sturtevant said, had threatened to divulge certain things about her career in Boston unless she paid him a sum of money.

Mrs. Sturtevant who was also known on the stage as Josephine Gibbons, is still very distinctly remembered in the corridors of the New England Conservatory of Music. She used to live in Gardner Hall, one of the dormitories over in Hemenway street.

TUGS REMOVE PASSENGERS OFF HALIFAX

The Plant liner Halifax, bound from Nova Scotia to Boston, ran aground on George's Island, Boston Harbor, in the dense fog early to-day, and for a time the passengers believed that the ship would turn turtle.

Of the 120 passengers aboard, many were women. Great excitement prevailed among them. Some of the women fainted. They ran on the deck partly dressed, and it required the constant care of the officers of the ship to keep them quieted.

PASSENGERS BROUGHT TO CITY ON TUGS.

The accident happened at 6:30 o'clock and it was impossible, it was said, to get the wireless in connection with any one ashore until 7 o'clock.

Then three tugs were hurried to the distressed ship and all of the passengers were taken off and brought to Boston.

No one was hurt, but many of the women were in a hysterical condition when they landed. The Halifax was left with her bow high out of the water and the stern sticking down in five fathoms of water. It was believed that the ship would rest in that position, without turning turtle, until the tide arose sufficiently to float the vessel.

Women Passengers Alarmed.

When the Halifax headed in from the sea to Boston early to-day the fog was almost impenetrable and Captain Alfred Ellis stopped the ship to await the lifting of the thick blanket.

At 6:30 he took soundings and believed that he would be able to nose his way into the dock through the narrow channel off George's Island.

But the vessel had only proceeded a short distance when she ran into the bank of the island. She continued until the bow was nearly out of the water. Immediately the ship listed sharply to starboard.

Most of the passengers were up by this time, but most of the women were in the act of dressing. When the big boat fell over in that manner on her side the women were naturally excited. Some of the men were, too.

Bad List to Starboard.

The tide was falling, and the more the water left the ship the worse her position appeared, at least to the passengers. The starboard side of the vessel keeled until her deck was almost even with the water.

When passengers walked out on the deck they had a very hard time to keep from slipping into the sea. This startled them, and many of them thought that unless help soon reached them the ship would turn over and they would all be hurled into the water.

When the dense fog that had covered the harbor lifted the soldiers at Fort Warren saw the vessel and became aware that she was in trouble. Although there was nothing that they could do they stood in readiness to take a hand if it became necessary.

The Plant liner Halifax is one of the best known vessels running out of Boston. She is one of the steamers that ply between this port and Halifax, Hawkesbury and Charlottetown.

The Halifax sailed from Charlottetown on Friday at noon and touched at Hawkesbury to take on passengers at 8 o'clock that night. She arrived at Halifax at 9 o'clock Saturday and sailed again for this port at 11 o'clock that day. She was due at Commercial Wharf at 7 o'clock to-day.

The wireless operator was busy all this time. He finally connected and help was rushed to the imperilled vessel. Three tugs—the Henry Preston, Sr., William G. Williams and Irving Ross—reached the Halifax about 8 o'clock.

By that time the ship was in such a position that the passengers could step from the deck on to the deck of the tugs. They did this, and without mishap were brought to Commercial Wharf and landed. The passengers carried their hand baggage with them.

It was said at this time that no attempt would be made at high tide this afternoon—3:34 o'clock—to float the vessel. It was thought that this could be done.

Stories of the Passengers.

Among the passengers on board were Mr. and Mrs. William Riddles, of the theatrical team of Riddles and Rymes, and Billie Lamar. They had been playing the provinces. Mrs. Riddle said in describing the wreck:

"I was fully dressed when the vessel struck. Everyone ran out on deck, some

BISHOP MALLALIEU IS GROWING WORSE

Bishop Mallalieu, one of the eldest officials of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the entire country, is in a semi-conscious condition to-day and his death is hourly expected. He is at his home, No. 42 Grove street, Auburndale, and for three weeks he has been in a serious condition. Last week there was a slight change for the better, but he suffered a relapse again to-day.

PASSENGERS ON LINER HALIFAX AWAKENED TO FIND SHIP IS ASHORE

half dressed. I have had some experience in accidents, and so kept my head better than some of the women. They were screaming all about, and trying to find a footing on the slanting deck.

"Presently the fog cleared a little, and we could see the great stone walls of Fort Warren, almost over our heads, and then everyone felt a little safer. We were nervous for fear the boat would turn over, but Captain Ellis and the officers reassured us. Everyone quieted down after a while, and I helped half a dozen frightened women button the buttons and hook the hooks that their trembling fingers could not handle. We all had our hand luggage when the tug took us off, but our theatrical stuff is in the hold and we are tied up till it is taken off!"

Captain Powell of the tug William G. Williams, said:

"When we reached the Halifax, her bow was under water, and the stern was in twenty-five feet of water. The tide is rising, and by high tide, she should float easily. There is no danger of turning turtle now, as the tide will right her. When we reached the boat, her starboard deck was almost level with the water, and it was no trick at all to step on board and help the passengers onto our boat."

Thomas Burke, the runner, and his bride, who was formerly Peggy Quincy of the Boston Journal, were on board, and assisted in the work of quieting the excited passengers.

Passengers Praise Officers.

Lieutenant J. W. Manley of the Brookline Fire Department, one of the passengers, said:

"I was in my stateroom fully dressed when the first shock came. I rushed out on deck. There was a lot of excitement. Women rushed from their staterooms, partially clothed. Many screamed. Some fainted. The captain and officers and the cooler passengers quieted them, and as soon as the fog lifted and everyone could see Fort Warren the excitement died down."

Major Edward Nettleton of Newport, N. H., a Civil War veteran, said:

"I felt the shock of the vessel striking and rushed out to find we were enveloped in the fog. We could see nothing. We did not know where we were, and this made the situation exciting and teryfying, especially to the women. I must praise Captain Ellis and his officers for their splendid work in pacifying the passengers."

The passengers were landed safely at Commercial wharf at 8:20 o'clock. On account of the sea being almost perfectly calm the transfer of passengers from the steamer to tugs of the Boston Tow Boat Company was accomplished with great speed and with no accidents. The passengers were but an hour delayed from the time of their regular arrival.

One of the officers of the steamer who accompanied the passengers to Comercial wharf said that the Halifax was in no serious danger. He said the steamer struck on a sandy bottom at a half tide and would undoubtedly come off at high water this afternoon.

Going at Quarter Speed.

He said that the steamer was proceeding cautiously in a dense fog at the time the steamer grounded. The vessel was moving at about quarter speed he said.

Fully 100 friends of passengers were at the pier when the tugs came alongside with the Halifax's passengers.

The heavy baggage of passengers remained aboard the steamer. It was found impossible to transfer all the baggage to the tugs after the steamer had grounded, and so firm was the belief of the officers of the steamer that the vessel would be off this afternoon that the passengers were told to call at the wharf and claim their baggage this afternoon. The steamer carried a cargo of 300 tons of miscellaneous goods, principally canned fish, hay and fresh fish.

Captain A. E. Ellis, in command of the Halifax, is one of the best known mariners running out of Boston.

COMPLEXION ROOM FOR WOMEN DINERS IS NEW CHICAGO FAD

CHICAGO, July 17.—One of the big Michigan avenue hotels is making a bid for women patrons through the novelty of a "complexion room." No matter whether the fair diner's big hat is crowning a medley of jet-black rats, puffs and real hair or whether her dome is topped with a bunch of drug store straw, the coiffure will look stunning in the "complexion room." No matter whether the roses on the cheeks were procured at the corner chemist's or whether her countenance in general is of the "marble" variety, she will "get away with it" in the "complexion room." Said the president: "You know that certain colorings, decorations, wall paper and floor coverings will set off to disadvantage some complexions, especially by candlelight or at night, making them look far from handsome. We will overcome this and make the cafe a veritable complexion room that will enhance the beauty, natural or artificial, of any woman."

"DICK-DICK" NOTE ATTACKED

SALEM, Ore., July 17.—According to Joohn A. Carson, special counsel for the Alaska syndicate and author of the letter to Captain D. H. Jarvis regarding the Morrissey account which was included in the charges made by delegate Wickersham against Attorney General Wickersham, the alleged "Dick to Dick" letter, which Miss Abbott asserts she discovered in the Interior Department records, is "rankest nonsense."

"The letter is a farce," said Mr. Carson, "because the Morgan-Guggenheim syndicate has no wish to secure a harbor at Controller Bay. There is no suitable harbor there. Controller Bay, or Natalia Bay, is a roadstead rather than a harbor."

Carson says that a vessel cannot enter it even in July, and that without doubt it is the worst place in the world to locate a harbor.

Carson said that engineers were sent to Alaska to determine a route for a railroad, and against his advice to start it from Controller bay. More than $1,500,000 was spent, he said, before the project was abandoned.

J. H. LAWSON FINDS INTRUDER AT BED

John H. Lawson, brother of Thomas W. Lawson, the Boston financier, who resides on Franklin street, Melrose Highlands, was suddenly awakened by a noise in the room. He was surprised to see an elderly man standing near his bed. Believing the man to be a burglar, he cried out to him and demanded to know what he was doing at the same time jumping from his bed and grabbing a razor, the only weapon within reach.

The man stood motionless. Mr. Lawson took the man who said he was sleepy to the attic and showed him to a bed. Mr. Lawson then telephoned the police, who found the man temporarily suffering from a weak mind. He was found to be A. Jenkins of Lynn, a veteran of the Civil War and about seventy-three years of age.

SEEK A NEW DEAN FOR WELLESLEY

The alumnae of Wellesley are petitioning that Professor Martha Hale Shackford be made the next dean of the college, as the Board of Trustees is now considering a successor to Miss Ellen Fitz Pendleton, the new president. The latter's position as dean has always been held on the campus to be practically as important as that of president. Miss Shackford is best known as an author of fanciful little romances. She has also published a text book in the general survey of English literature. She not only has the reputation of having read every worth while book ever written, but she has systematized the information she had for her classes in a way that reduced her "quiz" to a science at the examinations.

HUNTERS OF BLACK HAND WRITER FREED

Dominico and Francesco Spinale, who live on Hale street, Boston, and were arrested in Cambridge on the charge of carrying loaded revolvers, pleaded guilty when arraigned before Judge Almy in the District Court here to-day, and the case was placed on file until October 17. Attorney Joseph Santuosso, in pleading for the men, said the prisoners had received Black Hand letters, and had armed themselves and gone to the West Boston bridge, where they were told to be, in hopes of catching the writer. Judge Almy said they would have done better to have turned the matter over to the police.

HITT SILENT ON MISS ELKINS RUMOR

NEW ORLEANS, July 17.—William F. Hitt refused, just before leaving for Boston, to be interview on the report circulated here that he is engaged to Miss Catherine Elkins. Just following last Mardi Gras Hitt was a devoted attendant upon Miss Elkins when they were on a cruise through Bayou Teche, as a member of a party aboard Joseph Leiter's launch, the Annie Russell. The story here is that they were engaged before the cruise was over.

Volunteers in the Fight.

Louis D. Brandeis, whose fights for the common people have made his name a household word the country over; Arthur B. Chapin, State bank commissioner; Herman L. Dillingham, secretary of the Secretary of Commerce wage assignment committee; Congressman James M. Curley, Senator James H. Doyle, Henry Abrahams, secretary of the Boston Central Labor Union, and numerous other prominent citizens have publicly praised the AMERICAN for its stand in the matter.

Since starting this fight on behalf of the working people in the Sunday AMERICAN of June 25, the AMERICAN has run different stories of loan shark oppresion, totalling 80,000 words, all of which were either sworn to, or substantiatd by reputable witnesses. It also closed its advertising columns to the small loan brokers, at a loss of $20,000 a year. But the results gained are considered to be well worth the outlay by th AMERICAN management, in a stand for human rights.

The prinicpal feature of the Tinkham-Cavanagh bill is the creation of a supervisor of small loans at a salary of $2,500 a year, and he is given absolute power to do any of the following things: Fix all rates of interest and charges on loans of $300 or less, which must not be more than 3 per cent. a month. Draft and enforce all regulations for licensed and non-licensed parties making such loans. Make regulations and fix rates of interest for pawnbrokers' license boards. Summons witnesses and compel them to testify under oath. Enter the premises of vaults and examine the books of all small loan dealers. Revoke licenses at will, or refuse to grant licenses. Compel the return of annual trial balances, and do any other thing necessary to prevent extortion. He is given the power of the State Bank Commissionetrs, Mayors, Aldermen and Selectmen of cities and towns. The State, city and town police are compelled to help him enforce the law and his own regulations.

All loans, or orders, mortgages, notes and assignments given to cover loans of $300 or less come within the scope of the bill. And all parties whose combined interest and charges for such loans total more than 12 per cent. a year must take out a license. The chartered loan companies and others not charging this 12 per cent. do not require a license, but all who make loans of $300 or less are placed under the supervisor's control.

All assignments, notes or mortgages given to secure such loans, must be accepted in writing by the employer and be consented to by his wife (if the borrower is married), and then filed with the town or city clerk where the borrower resides before they are valid.

No assignment can be made for more than a year, and when it is filed with the city or town clerk it must bear on its face notice that $10 of the man's wages are exempt.

Any person loaning $300 or under, at a rate exceeding 12 per cent. without a license, whether an agent or acting for himself (unless he is agent for a licensed money lender) is liable to a $500 fine or sixty days' imprisonment. The licensed money lender who permits his agent to charge more is also amenable to this provision.

Punishable by Fine.

A refusal to furnish the supervisor the evidence called for, or an attempt to obstruct the law, is made punishable by a fine of $500, or imprisonment for six months, or both fine and imprisonment.

The extraordinaury privileges now enjoyed by the four chartered companies of the State, where they conflict with this act, are repealed. This list includes the Chattel Loan Company, the Collateral Loan Company, Workingman's Loan Association and Worcester Collateral Loan Company.

The license fees are fixed at not less than $100, and each licencee must furnish a $5,000 bond as a guarantee that he will live up to the terms of his license and observe the supervisor's regulations.

HOPELESS WOMAN MAY DIE OF POISON

Disheartened because the future seemed hopeless, Mrs. Charles Spears, twenty-seven, of No. 19 Harrison street, Cambridge, swallowed tincture of iodine at her home. At the Cambridge Relief Hospital, where she was taken, it was stated to-day that her condition was critical.

SHERMAN SURVIVED FIRE AT PORCUPINE

LOWELL, July 17.—A telegram has been received by Miss Charlotte Sherman from her brother, Harold A. Sherman, reported lost in the Porcupine district disaster, stating that he was very much alive. Sherman was at the Jamieson property outside of the fire district.

A QUICK ELECTROCUTION.

OSSINING, N. Y., July 17.—A new record for electrocution was made to-day when Guiseppe Serimarco went to death in the chair at Sing Sing for the murder of a fellow Italian in one minute and four seconds. Only one contact was necessary.

How to get a flag:

Clip seven flag coupons from the Daily and Sunday AMERICAN of consecutive dates. If you wish to have the flag come by mail, send the seven coupons and a postoffice money order for forty-two cents to cover cost of mailing and handling.

If you call for the flag at the Flag Department of the AMERICAN at No. 275 Devonshire street, it will cost you thirty-five cents and seven coupons.

SPECIAL FLAG NOTICE!

The Flag Department has received several hundred remittances from readers who have failed to send their name or address in sending for flags.

If any AMERICAN reader has sent for a flag and has not received it, this may be the reason, and it would be advisable in any such cases to notify the Flag Dept., P. O. Box 3047, Boston, giving the facts and full name and address.

COMPROMISE ON TARIFF ACTION

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Senate Republican progressives and Democratic leaders are shaping their plans for the passage of much tariff legislation before the adjournment of the special session.

House Democratic leaders will meet the Senate on a compromise basis because they are desirous of securing all possible reductions in existing prohibitive rates.

President Taft is to be given an opportunity to make good his alleged threat that he would veto any tariff legislation before the Tariff Board has reported the results of his investigation into the cost of productions of dutiable articles at home and abroad.

To a large extent it is a political game that is being framed up by the progressives and the Democrats. Both want tariff reductions to meet the demands of their constituents. They assert they cannot return to their people without having made an earnest effort to secure such revision.

If they succeed in putting a measure up to the President they can justify themselves. Should the President veto the bill the responsibility will rest on him. Progressives and Democrats believe a veto will weaken the President. It is the plan in the Senate to make the Farmers' free list bill the burden-bearer for other tariff changes. The free list bill will not be changed materially. But it will be amended by having added to it the LaFollette wool bill, a record cotton schedule, Cummins's bill cutting the duties on steel, oilcloth and linoleum, and Bristow's reduction of the duties on sugar and abandonment of the Dutch standard test.

The vote on the free list will come by agreement, August 1. By that time the Democradtic House plans to have its cotton revision schedule before the Senate. But the Ways and Means committee will not have ready its revision of the sugar, steel and other schedules to be taken up by the progressive Senators.

There are indications, however, that Chairman Underwood will waive whatever irregularity there may be in this method by the Senate of originating revenue legislation in his desire to secure reductions in tariff duties. It is more than likely that a compromise basis can be reached in conference, and a revision acceptable to both Democrats and progressives agreed on. The reciprocity bill will be passed without change. The Senate Democrats will join with the regular Republicans to accomplish this. Then the Democrats will desert the regular Republicans and join with the progressive Republicans to enact the tariff legislation being urged by the progressives. The alliance with the progressive Republicans is the only way the Senate Democrats have of securing tariff revision.

BRILLIANT METEOR OVER LAKE MICHIGAN

CHICAGO, July 17.—A meteor with a flaming, fanlike tail stretching far behind, that swept across the sky and exploded over Lake Michigan, startled thousands of Chicagoans last night. The visitor looked as big as a full moon and lighted up the entire sky. "It was probably the advance guard of the meteoric shower due next month," said Director Edwin B. Frost of the Yerkes observatory.

CHELSEA MOB FIGHTS POLICE

Four men were arraigned in the Chelsea court to-day in connection with a desperate battle in which, back to back, two Chelsea officers fought for half an hour against a mob of 300 at the corner of Arlington and Second streets, Chelsea; until rescued by a squad hurried from the station. Several times when the officers were fighting, knives flashed. They were able to ward off the stabs with their clubs, but one blow landed, and the police badge caught the point of the knife, breaking it and turning it aside, saving the officer's life.

A fight attracted a big crowd. Special Officer Harris Goldstein happened along and arrested one of the combatants, Alexander Ziatzi. He was immediately set upon by three others. While defending his capture Patrolman Haniy came along and started to assist him.

Alexander Ziatzi was wrested away from the policemen and fled into a house at No. 166 Second street, the two policemen fighting their way through the mob after him. A desperate encounter took place outside.

Four arrests were made before the mob scattered to safety. Alexander Ziatzi, the original prisoner, was caught, and with him his two brothers, John and Michael, with one other, Alexander Virlo.

YACHTSMEN FAVOR BAY IMPROVEMENT

To abate the bad odor arising from the dump and flats of Old Harbor, the most westerly inlet of Dorchester Bay, by the construction of a dam from the foot of Telegraph street to Calf Pasture, is the substance of a bill introduced in the Legislature by Representative William P. Hickey, and which was put over for the consideration of the General Court next term.

PRIESTS AND CHUMS SAY FIRST MASSES

Schoolmates and old-time chums participated in the first mass celebrated by the Rev. Neil Cronin, the Rev. Richard Haverlin and the Rev. Joseph Murphy at St. Augustine's, the Church of the Rosary and the Gate of Heaven Church, South Boston. All attended the public schools and were graduated from Boston College. Fathers Cronin and Haverlin were recently graduated from the American College at Rome.

NEW MARK SET FOR MISS SEARS

"What will Eleo say?"

This was the question asked to-day by Boston society people at their Summer homes in the country and on the North Shore when the news had percolated around that Costance Warren, New York society girl and friendly athletic rival of Eleonora Sears, had broken all swimming records at Newport.

She swam on Sunday from Bailey's Beach to the Forty Steps at Newport Cliffs, a distance of three and a half miles, in one hour and thirty-five minutes. Miss Warren beat her own time made last year of one hour and fifty-five minutes.

No one knows at just what precise spot Miss Sears was to-day when she heard the news, for she flits from Newport to Manchester-by-the-Sea, to the Rocky Mountains and to California from month to month, as the whim seizes her, but the general bet today among society people was that she will flit to Newport now and try to beat that record.

Eleonora Sears is some swimmer, be it known. Until Miss Warren appeared Miss Sears was the best swimmer at Newport, both for speed and endurance.

Miss Warren does not excel in as many sports as does Eleonora Sears, but in swimming she holds all cups up to date. During most of her swim Miss Warren, who is the daughter of George Henry Warren of New York, had comparathively smooth water, but she struck a rough place together with a fog bank off the summer home of Charles Warren Lippitt and twice she was lost to view from the lifeboat. She used the side stroke the greater part of the way and twice on the trip she rested in the water for a minute while she sipped a stimulating drinc handed to her from the lifeboat.

Miss Warren was not greatly fatigued and she was rowed back to the beach where her maid was waiting.

3 IN WAGON HIT BY TRAIN MAY DIE

LEWISTON, Me., July 17—A wagon demolished, a horse killed and three persons in a critical condition to-day are the results of a collision with a Pullman train and a wagon at a blind crossing of the Maine Central Railroad on Cedar street, Lewiston.

The injured are Thomas Marcotte and Miss Mary Malvey, both of whom are employed at Poland Spring and who were on their way there when the accident occurred, and Felix Chouinard of Lisbon. He is believed to have been riding on the pilot of the locomotive or standing near the crossing at the time of the accident. Engineer William Clark was driving the train.

MAN LOST IN ALPS NOT FROM BOSTON

GENEVA, July 17.—Swiss reports are incorrect regarding the missing American, Homer Diman, aged eighteen, who belongs to New York city, not to Boston. His mother, Mrs. Georgiana Cardayse, says that Mr. Diman, who was six feet tall, was last seen on July 5, dressed for climbing, and carrying a sack with no provisions. Guides have daily scoured the Dent Du Midi unsuccessfully.

YOUNG VANDERBILT A SKILFUL SAILOR

NEWPORT, July 17.—Master William Vanderbilt, son of Alfred G. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt, has commissioned his half-rater, Caprice II., in honor of his mother, who until last Summer owned and sailed the thirty-foot Caprice. William is showing skill as a sailor, and sits for hours steering his yacht, with his tutor close at hand.

RESCUE WOMEN IN DRIFTING MOTOR BOAT

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., July 17.—After being adrift on the Hudson in a disabled launch for five hours, six women and two men were rescued in the channel by Townsend Vroe and Fred Frayer to-day. The women were in a state of collapse and the men were overcome from calling for help.

TO SETTLE BULL SUIT TOMORROW

To-morrow sees the end of the litigation on the will of Mrs. Ole Bull. Attorneys for both sides meet at Biddeford, Me., to present to Judge Nathaniel Hobbs the terms of a settlement, which it is expected he will ratify at once.

The settlement was agreed upon June 26. Under its terms, Mrs. Olea Bull Vaughan, the contestant of her mother's will, is left as sole heir, trustee and executor of her mother's estate. It is understood that as part of the settlement, the bequests to Joseph G. Thorp, Mrs. Bull's brother, who was named as executor in the contested will, will be paid.

The Bull case lasted for about two months. The hearings were held in the probate court at Alfred, the county seat of York County, Me. Although she lived in Cambridge, Mrs. Bull had established her legal residence in York County.

Mrs. Vaughan's attorneys were Ralph S. Bartlett, and Sherman L. Whipple. They alleged that Mrs. Bull's mind had been unsettled by the practises of a certain Hindu religion of which she had become a devotee. The testimony introduced to support this allegation made the case one of the most sensational ever tried in a Maine court.

Told of Mystic Rites.

It appeared from the testimony of several witnesses that Mrs. Bull's home at No. 168 Brattle street, Cambridge, and her smaller house called "The Studio House," also in Cambridge, were the scenes of rites and mystic observances that might have been taken fresh from the Arabian nights. There was a meditation room in which Mrs. Bull and her intimates were accustomed to sit for hours, burning incense and communing with the dead. There was a practice called Raja Yoga, the object of which was to stir a certain vital force called the "Kundalini," into life, so that it ascended the "sussuma canal," through the spine to the brain. The devotees believed that, once this transition had been accomplished they became gods, above sense, above knowledge, above all rules of right and wrong.

The method of stirring the "kundalini" was curious. Devotees would sit around in a circle, in any postion they might choose, so that the position was a comfortable one their spines were straight.

Then there were breathing exercises, to teach the power of concentration. Closing one nostril with a finger, the subjects breathed deeply through the other for a certain number of seconds. Then that nostril was opened, the other was closed and the breath was expelled. The Indian followers of Raja Yoga, Swami Vivekananda, Swami Saradananda and others could breathe through either nostril at will, without using their fingers to assist the control.

These exercises taught control of the body by the mind. Following them, the students were instructed to imagine a lotus flower blooming on the top of their head and growing in size steadily. They were to picture it so vividly that they could smell the perfume.

Cult Secrets Exposed.

Finally, the neophytes were instructed to concentrate their thoughts on the "kundalini." This, by the way, is stored in the normal person in a triangular cavity at the base of the spine. It lies dormant, and is the source of hallucinations and dreams. All the great geniuses of history are the result of an accidental awakening of the "kundalini," as a result of which a portion of it has penetrated to the brain.

The circle of neophytes imagined this "kundalini" as stirring, while fumes rose from it slowly, and presently the mental picture showed a bit of it creeping up into the brain. It was not told in the trial just how the subject knew when the feat was accomplished and he was become a god. Witnesses testified that Mrs. Bull herself had gone through the "stages of practise" and become a god.

It was said also that she had reached the super-conscious state, the goal of all Yogi, through another route. Co-ordinate with Raja Yoga was Bhakti-Yoga. Raja Yoga means, in substance, the attainment of the god state through physical exercises. Bhakti, however, attain the super-conscious state through love—not between men and women, but between mortals and God. Mrs. Bull, it was said, had declared that she was a "Bhakti by nature."

The effect of these practices on the Occidental mind was a terrible one. Of the half a dozen Americans who entered the circle, most of them suffered. Miss Sarah J. Farmere, head of the Greenacre Conference in Maine, was affected seriously and is only just recovering. Another woman, it was said, was driven mad by the powers of a Japanese mystic who visited Mrs. Bull. Nicola Ruberto, a witness in the case, said that he only ceased his pursuit of the Yoga when he found himself the victim of hallucinations. Mrs. Bull, the contestants assert, was clearly insane.

Charge Psychic Plotting.

The practises induced an unreasoning fear of the powers of hostile mystics. Mrs. May Wright Sewall, one of the most prominent women of the country, was held in such deadly fear that Mrs. Bull ordered her out of the house, and after her departure had the furniture scrubbed with olive oil and ammonia to exercise the evil spirits, and chanted charms in the halls and corridors of the Bull home, to drive away any lingering evil influences. It was shown that she feared to see her own daughter, because that daughter was living with a Mrs. Abbie Shapleigh. Mrs. Bull feared that Mrs. Shapleigh would send malign influences, clinging to her daughter's garments, to harass her.

Mr. Whipple, of counsel for the contestant alleged that a psychic conspiracy was woven around Mrs. Bull, to induce her to disinherit her daughter. Miss Margaret Noble, called Sister Nivedita by her comrades in the Yogi faith, was named as the arch conspirator. Toward the last days of the trial testimony of how this Miss Noble administered strange Indian drugs of Mrs. Bull was introduced. After taking these drugs, it was testified, Mrs. Bull would be pale and listless.

FIND WEIGHTED BODY OF SUICIDE

The body of Bartholomew J. Ryan, twenty-eight years old, who disappeared last Thursday, was found to-day in the Charles river. A fifty-pound sand bag, tied to one leg, indicated that he had committed suicide. He had been married only three months, but ill health and family troubles had preyed upon his mind so that for some time he had been drinking heavily.

Ryan was employed at the Norumbega boat house, and last Thursday afternoon started down the river to deliver a consignment of tonic to one of the refreshment stands. In the bow of the canoe was a fifty-pound sand bag for ballast. An hour later, the canoe, with his coat and the pop bottles, was found floating in the "Cuts" near Norumbega Tower. Near the canoe floated his pocketbook with all his money.

Since that time the river has been dragged repeatedly by the police and by friends, but no trace of the body was found. To-day Jeremiah Coleman, a friend of Ryan's, saw the body afloat in the water.

MASS MEETING FOR McNAMARA DEFENCE

There will be a mass meeting on Boston Common Sunday afternoon, July 30, it was decided by the Boston McNamara defence conference in the interests of International Secretary-Treasurer J. J. McNamara of the Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, who is under arrest for alleged complicity in the blowing up of the Los Angeles Times building. Among the principal speakers will be Congressman Frank Buchanan of Chicago, a former international president of the Iron Workers; Congressman Victor Berger of Milwaukee, the only Socialist Congressman; International President Frank M. Ryan of the Iron Workers, and ex-Representative James F. Carey of Haverhill.

DOWIE'S SUCCESSOR KISSES 296 BABIES

CHICAGO, July 17.—Two hundred and ninety-six babies were kissed in forty minutes Sunday by Wilbur Glen Voliva, John Alexander Dowie's successor as the head of Zion City, as a part of the consecration ceremony. The kissing rite was followed by a "sacrifice" offering, which netted the new prophet $27,500 in coins tossed by the faithful into a barrel. Voliva announced his plan of founding a home in Zion City for reclaimed women.

CURLEY TO ASK MILK INQUIRY

A sweeping investigation of the milk situation in Boston, supplementing that already made by direction of Acting-Mayor Collins—which revealed startling conditions among the poor of the city—will be provided for in an order to be introduced in the City Council to-day by Councilman Curley. Besides that the Boston Board of Health will conduct an investigation of conditions in the sections of the State that contribute to the milk supply of Greater Boston.

True to the agreement made between the producers and the dealers, the price of milk in Boston has gone to nine cents a quart, and no one seems to be in a position to say how long this price will continue.

The H. P. Hood Company, one of the largest dealers in the State, sent out a statement to its customers, in which it says:

"The period of terrific heat through which we have just passed has demonstrated as never before the great importance and value of cows and milk as a food and a necessity to sustain the lives of babies, children and adults.

"As a severe drought has followed a dry Spring season, this period of terrific heat has nearly destroyed the pasturage and grazing for the farmers' cows and we find the farmers are not getting enough for their milk to return them a fair profit. Therefore, we have decided that it is just to grant them an advance, beginning July 16, which will make it impossible for us to continue to sell milk to you at our present price.

"We are confident our customers prefer to have us maintain the high standard of milk than to attempt to give them a cheaper and necessarily poorer milk and they will appreciate the reasons that compel us to return to price in vogue a year ago at this time by an advance of one cent per quart beginning July 16."

This statement is but a sample of those prepared by others of the big contractors in the city and suburbs and sent out to their customers.

To-morrow a mass meeting of the milk producers will be held in Horticultural Hall, Worcester, to consider the situation from their standpoint.

BATES FAMILY TO MEET IN WEYMOUTH

BOSTON CENTRE OF BIG WAR GAME

"Boston is to be attacked "silently" to-night. It will be defended just as silently.

Not a twelve-inch gun will roar defiance to-night at the "foreign fleet" which theoretically has defeated the warships guarding the coast and steamed stealthily up the bay, hoping to elude the guns and warships of the harbor forts and capture the city at one fell stroke. They will attempt the one fell stroke, but only the rays of the searchlights will be hurled against them.

Economy on the part of Uncle Sam in the use of gunpowder is said to be responsible for the "silence" put on the big guns of the harbor forts in the war game this year. Behind the big rifles to-night will be the gallant gunners of the Corps Coast Artillery, M. V. M., who for nine days have manned the defences awaiting the call to arms to repel the foe who would dare invade the domain of the Sacred Cod and prepared to hurl against him charge after charge of blank ammunition in defence of their altars and their fires.

For several years past during the Summer war game people of Boston and at the beach resorts have listened to the war of the big guns from the forts and seen the glare of the searchlights as they darted to and fro seeking the "enemy." To-night the searchlights will play but there will be no roars from the guns.

Go Through the Motions.

Instead, when the searchlight from one of the forts picks up the fleet, there will be a general call to arms. At each of the posts the guns will be manned and trained on the attacking ships. The gunners will then go through the regular night battery drill without firing.

The new program gives the artillerymen almost as much practice and does not waste any more gunpowder. Today service firing is resumed at Forts Strong and Standish. The work will probably be completed by noon, after which there will be no more drills for the men, except to-night.

Militia Pay Held Up.

There was a brief invasion of gloom at Fort Andrews when Major Burt, Paymaster United States Army, refused to pay the enlisted specialists attached to the non-commissioned staff of the corps.

With the rest of the reserves, the electricians, engineers, firemen and others, presented themselves at the paymaster's tent. They were told the war department had issued instructions not to pay them as specialists, because they had not complied with the war department orders as to taking examinations.

Colonel Walter L. Lombard entered a vigorous protest that every provision of the law had been complied with, that the men had been taken over from the State by the government and should be paid according to their rank. Major Burt declared that his orders were not to be disregarded. He stated that the department had authorized him to pay the specialists as privates. Payment on this understanding Colonel Lombard would not permit, and the matter will be referred to the department for adjustment.

Naval Brigade at Sea.

Meantime all along the north Atlantic coast the big naval war game is on. Battleships, torpedo boats, submarines and cruisers, manned by the naval militia brigades of the New England States, New York, New Jersey, Maryland, South Carolina, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia, several thousand strong, are prepared to attack and defend.

The attacking fleet will endeavor by way of Long Island Sound, New York's "back door," to attack the city of New York. Naval experts contend it is possible for a powerful fleet of battleships to reach the great metropolis by way of the eastern end of Long Island.

And the "battle of Gardner's Bay" will be watched with great interest on this account. There will be day and night attacks and conditions of actual warfare will be closely simulated.

The U. S. S. Chicago with 500 of the Massachusetts naval militia on board, under command of Captain D. M. Goodridge, joins the Atlantic Coast naval militia squadron, which will consist of more than a dozen vessels.

GOMEZ IN FEAR OF ASSASSINS

HAVANA, July 17.—In constant fear of assassination as the result of the bitter feeling against him in connection with the recent corruption charges, President Gomez has ordered a treble line of police to be kept on guard duty around his palace and a nightly guard of 100 rurales to be maintained at the entrances.

Public feeling grows in intensity over the discussion of the possibility of American intervention. El Tribuno, Gomez's personal organ, declares that 20,000 loyal troops are holding themselves in readiness to obey Gomez's orders, and that this force is amply sufficient to repel any attempt the United States may have made to reoccupy the island.

Quantities of arms and ammunition are being forwarded by rail from seaports to interior points and troops are kept moving without delay. In fact the military activity is almost as great as if the country was in actual state of war.

The leading newspapers declare that the approaching visit of Secretary of War Stimson and Major General Wood will prove to be but the prelude to intervention by the United States to restore order to the country in the government's badly tangled fiscal affairs. These papers join in declaring that the executive and congressional acts imposing a further tax on imports constitute a direct violation of the Platt amendment to the reciprocity treaty and thus directly invites again to interfere in Cuban affairs.

HAND ENGROSSMENT MAY BE DROPPED

That hand engrossing of acts and resolves on parchment be abolished will be recommended by Secretary of State Langtry in his first report. He said to-day:

"I have decided to recommend it. To have to put on extra clerks to work nights so as not to delay the Legislature is cumbersome, expensive and absurd.

"It is time that Massachusetts should abolish this archaism, for she is almost the only State preserving the customs."

An extra force of clerks worked a considerable part of Friday night, all day Saturday and much of Saturday night, and it looked as if Sunday work would be necessary, on the Pittsfield charter bill.

URGES PIPES FOR PRISONERS

In a resolution calling for the free use of pipes and tobacco by the male adult prisoners of all State and county penal institutions at noon and night the Boston Central Labor Union believes it has found the way to do away with the "dope habit" alleged to be so prevalent in those institutions to-day.

The resolution adopted by unanimous vote at the labor men's meeting states in part that:

"Whereas, we learn with alarm of the growing use of "dope" and other dangerous drugs by unfortunate youths and men of our day, and which has a baneful influence on those with whom they come in contact. Many of these have acquired the habit in our prisons, jails and other institutions by having drugs brought in to them by misguided friends and more often by the underpaid officers and instructors for the money they can collect from the unfortunate and unhappy victims and less thinking friends of the outside world.

"Whereas, tobacco smoking is a good, mild and soothing stimulant to the racked body and shattered nerves of those brooding over their sad fate in institutions."

The income tax bill now before the State Senate and the immediate construction of subways to South Boston and the Dorchester districts are also favored by resolutions passed at the Central Labor Union meeting.

AGED MEN WEEP AT HERZL SERVICES

Gray-haired and gray-bearded men with the imprint of the immigrant still fresh upon their faces, and younger men whose faces plainly told of long residence in this country, wept as one of the speakers told of the great loss the Jews sustained in the death of Theodore Herzl, the famous Zionist leader, for whom memorial services were held at the Yavne Synagogue, Milton street.

GAMBLERS DEFY ORDER TO CLOSE

PROVIDENCE, July 17.—The gamblers at Narragansett Pier are openly defying Governor Pothier in his effort to drive the fraternity from this State. In the face of orders from Sheriff John R. Wilcox, acting under instructions from the Governor, that every gambling place at the Pier must close and stay closed, higher play than ever was in progress during the gamblers' week-end harvest.

The only precaution taken was that strangers were not admitted to the rooms. Only old patrons were admitted by the lookouts, but there were enough old patrons to make a very satisfactory day's receipts for the owners.

Sheriff Wilcox spent a day in calling at the numerous places where gambling was known to go on and warned the proprietors and employes that the Pier was in for a house-cleaning. The sheriff found the Sunday AMERICAN'S expose of gambling conditions had not been exaggerated.

He threatened to make it interesting for any resort that remained open. The gamblers got in conference after the visit of the sheriff and after talking the matter over for some time, decided to take a chance. They kept their places quiet during the day, but in the evening and through to the early hours to-day things were lively.

The defiance of the authorities aroused much comment here and at the Pier. There was a deal of speculation as to what the outcome would be. In view of Governor Pothier's determination to stamp out gambling it was expected that important developments would soon be seen.

Sheriff Wilcox is ready to take firm measures at once if there is continued defiance of the law. He has orders to see that gambling is stopped and is believed ready to open a vigorous campaign against the proprietors.

GLACIA CALLA IS IN LOVE SUIT

Boston friends of Mrs. Paul E. Roy, or as she was known on the stage, Glacia Calla, are at a loss to understand why she is referred to as "Barefoot Lil" in the cross libel for divorce filed in Baker, Oregon, by Mrs. Sidney C. Love, in which Miss Calla is named as correspondent.

As Mrs. Paul E. Roy, Glacia Calla first came into the public gaze when in January, 1908, she startled the residents of Newington, N. H., where she then lived, by accusing her husband of the murder of her brother, George A. Carkins.

A noted beauty, Glacia Calla has had a tempestuous career, but her being named in the Love divorce suit, which already has become one of the most sensational in recent years, came as a surprise to her friends and acquaintances in New England.

"Barefoot Lil," New Name.

Little has been heard of Glacia Calla in the last two years. Following the killing of her brother, her husband's flight to France and her brief experience on the stage, she lapsed into obscurity. It was supposed by her friends that she was living quietly in Washington, D. C.

In the counter suit for divorce filed by Mrs. Love in Baker, Miss Calla is also referred to as "Barefoot Lil," a designation which her friends in Boston and New England are at a complete loss to understand. In the papers filed by Mrs. Love her husband is accused of indiscretions with Miss Calla in New York city on several occasions between September 1, 1909, and March 1, 1910.

It does not appear where or how Love became acquainted with Glacia Calla. This actress of so many unusual experiences is as well known in Paris as she is at home. She has enjoyed high social advantages and has profited by her opportunities to obtain education and polish. She has been known abroad variously as Lillian Carkins, Gladys Hodgdon, Mrs. William Murray, Mrs. William C. Southers, Mrs. Sergins, Mrs. Glacia Calla Carkins and Mrs. Paul E. Roy.

Her social mentor has been for a long time the Baroness A. B. Von Orendorf, a widow who was something of a mystery to the diplomatic corps and society in Washington.

Glacia Calla was born in 1871 at Portsmouth. When a mere girl she was once arrested on a charge of blackmail.

The Love divorce cases stretch clear across the continent and to Europe. It was only recently that Mrs. Love, who was noted as one of the most beautiful women in America, fled from Newport with her two-year-old daughter, to escape, it was said, detectives in the employ of her husband who had planned to kidnap the child. The little girl is heiress to a fortune of almost $12,000,000 which is held in trust for her until she becomes of age, the mother controlling only the income.

Mystery of Carkins' Death.

Love first brought suit against his wife in Oregon. Mrs. Love retaliated with a counter suit. At first the name of the corespondent was suppressed, but it has just been learned that Glacia Calla is named as the other woman in the case.

The death of George A. Carkins at Newington, N. H., on the night of January 2, 1908, resulted in the unusual spectacle of a wife accusing her husband of the murder of her brother and aroused national interest in the case. The flight of Paul E. Roy to France, his threats to his wife if she did not go follow him there, his attempts through private detectives in this country to obtain evidence on which to base an action in the French courts for divorce and Mrs. Roy's brief and unfortunate stage experience followed quickly.

Her Story of the Crime.

It was not until several weeks after the killing of Carkins that Glacia Calla made her sensational accusation against her husband. By that time he was in France, his native country. The wife's story was that her husband had been unreasonably cross and ugly towards her and the brother had resented it. She also said that Roy acted in an insanely jealous manner because she was going to a concert at Portsmouth that night. He and her brother had words over Roy's treatment of her and then suddenly she heard a shot and saw her brother fall dying. Roy, she said, claimed he had shot in self defence and so terrified her and her mother that they kept the secret of the killing, giving out that Carkins had shot himself.

Depositions of half a dozen witnesses have already been taken bearing upon the adventures of Love for the last two years in the West. One of his accusers, Fred Sutton, a private detective, testifies that he shadowed Love for twenty months, gained his confidence and accompanied him on clandestine excursions. The names of three women are given by this witness. One of them, referred to as "Bessie," was formerly a chorus girl in Marie Cahill's company. A Mrs. Helen Newlands and a Mrs. Webster are also mentioned.

HOW SEA-GOING "COP" MASON GETS THEM AT REVERE

Under his police uniform Bill Mason, of the Metropolitan Service, wears bathing tights so as to be ready for a quick shift if his duties call him into the sea.

"Bill" Mason of the Metropolitan Park Police is recognized as a regular amphibious cop.

"Bill" is stationed at the Revere Beach reservation. He spied William Morrissey of Paris street, East Boston, fleeing from a Revere special policeman. Morrissey cut across the beach sands and plunged into the surf. He figured that he would balk arrest by taking to the water.

But Mason, the Park policeman, is prepared for any kind of duty, wet or dry. Under his official trousers he wears a set set of bathing trunks. With his trousers on he is a landsman. But let him shed his trousers and he is a sea-going cop.

Mason peeled off his trousers, appearing in bathing trunks. He plunged in after Morrissey and had the latter ashore before Morrissey realized it.

Malefactors along Revere Beach are now wary of Mason. For all they know he may have a pocket flying machine in his vest. On land, in the water, up in the air, Mason is on the job.

Crooks figure that the only way to escape from Mason is to break in jail and hide.

Morrissey, the man who couldn't fool the amphibious Mason, was wanted by a Revere special on a charge of making trouble in a flying horse parlor.

RUM EXPOSURE STIRS MAINE

BANGOR, Me., July 17.—It is safe to say that no newspaper expose in a generation has so stirred the authorities and the unlicensed liquor dealers of the Pine Tree State as the story in yesterday's Sunday AMERICAN about the wide-open bars of Maine. Local officials, approached early to-day on the subject, were as mum as so many oysters. Mayor Mullen spent the Sabbath at his camp in the woods. Chief of Police Frank Davis said he had said all he is going to say when he told the Sunday AMERICAN reporter last week that the forty saloons of Bangor are wide open and thriving because "public sentiment" demands them.

It is hard to say whether the enterprise of the Sunday AMERICAN in showing up the non-enforcement of the prohibitory law has been commended most by Prohibitionists or the advocates of Repeal. The Prohibitionists feel that it ought to stir spineless officials into prompt action. The Repealers feel that it will close the bars until the vote on September 11. If everything was closed tight on January 1, they say, the prohibitory amendment would be ripped out of the constitution in September by a tremendous majority. They hope it may not be too late now.

The Sunday AMERICAN brought no news to the people of Bangor and Portland, which, strange as it may appear to people outside the State who have always looked upon Maine as the one true abiding place of genuine prohibition, have always had the open barroom and its full and complete stock of ales, wines and liquors.

But the Sunday AMERICAN story brought home the truth with photographs and names and interviews. It told the story to other Maine communities than the largest two cities. It opened men's eyes. It made them think. It was an epoch-making publication. How strong its effect may be none can say, but it is certainly the talk of the State.

The Sunday AMERICAN told of the opening of the campaign for and against the repeal of the prohibitory clause.

Be sure to read the complete expose of liquor conditions in Maine, which will be published in next Sunday's AMERICAN. The amazing facts set forth in last Sunday's AMERICAN literally shook up the State of Maine like a tornado. Be sure to get next Sunday's story, in which conditions all over the State are set forth. Remember! In next Sunday's AMERICAN exclusively.

ALBANIANS IN FIGHT FOR LIFE

By CHARLES H. MELTZER.

VIENNA, July 17.—According to the very latest news, the insurrection in Southern Albania is fast spreading. Ismail Kamal Bey says only 5,000 insurgents are now in the field, but behind them are 200,000 patriots ready, if compelled, to fight for food and home.

Many of the 10,000 Albanian settlers in the United States are returning to assist their fellow countrymen. The local committees in Boston and St. Louis are actively co-operating with the so called rebels. Their headquarters in St. Louis are said to be the offices of the Albanian newspaper, the Thompetter E Kruses and in Boston, the offices of the Flemuri E Djelli, or Flag and Sun.

One of Ismail Kemal's closest friends tells me that numbers of his compatriots are now living, or starving, on one meal of bread weekly, eked out by roots.

The Turkish forces under Chevket Torgut are estimated at 40,000.

Day after day one reads of new and dreadful crimes perpetrated by the Ottomans; women and children are starving in Albanian swamps; men are being shot down or forced into exile. Chevket Torgut, like another Attila, is laying waste their lands; plainsmen and highlanders, driven to despair by the sight of their blazing farms and rotting herds, have risen in arms, but they are fighting for an almost hopeless cause, and up till now no word of cheer has come from Europe or beyond the seas.

He believes that by appealing to the world he will yet save his countrymen. He is in the first stage of a journey which will take him from Vienna to Rome, Paris and London. In each of those great cities he will state the case of the distressed Albanians, do what he can to stir up public sentiment and beg for help.

Hope Is in America.

"Our only hope," he said, "is in America. There people are not selfish like the nations of old Europe; there they have hearts."

I asked him to explain the wrongs and rights of Albanians.

"We only ask," he answered, "for the right to live. We are not disloyal. We want nothing that has not been clearly promised in the Turkish constitution. Not for one moment have we dreamed of renouncing our allegiance.

"So long as Turkey holds her own in Europe we are willing to be true to her. We have no wish to link our fate with Montenegro's, for in the past the Albanians and their Montenegrin neighbors have been enemies.

"The Young Turks who now rule, or are supposed to rule in Turkey, brought hope with them when they came into power, but how have they kept their promises? They have been faithless to their own constitution, they have suppressed our newspapers, closed our schools and forbidden us to use the Albanian language.

"The Sultan? There is no real Sultan left. The Young Turks themselves are at the mercy of a secret organization which dictates their policy. Yes, a secret organization in the East, composed of nominally Mohammedans, who, while professing a respect for liberty, destroy it.

"Chevket Torgut Pasha does just as he pleases and seems bent on extermination. Unless some intervention comes at once we shall be crushed. In February, finding themselves unable to get redress, some of the Albanians took to arms; three weeks ago, on June 23, in response to a proclamation of Chevket Torgut, the Albanian chiefs, with my assistance, drew up a petition at Gertche, wherein they formulated their grievances.

"No single word in that petition offended the constitution. We have always been devoted to the Sultan; Catholics and Mussulman have been united in their loyalty to the Turkish empire, but we were loyal to a Turkey which, as we had hoped, would be equally true to its own promises and to humanity. But we, who had been the first promoters of the new constitution have been its first victims.

"A year ago David Pasha and his battalions invaded Albania and, under the pretence of repressing brigandage, burned down our villages. The criminals went unpunished. The peasants of Pritchina were then taxed beyond endurance without the sanction of Parliament, and an army under Chevket Pasha was sent to Kossov, nominally to enforce reforms, but really to chastise those who had dared to oppose the action of the secret powers of whom I have told you.

Homes Destroyed.

"We let it pass, we even submitted to the indignity of having to surrender our weapons. The present uprising is the direct result of the destruction of the village homes of the Malissori—that is to say, of Albanian Highlanders, for Malissori is only Albanian for mountaineers.

"Our petition is divided into twelve clauses. It calls for guarantees against the recurrence of the anti-constitutional acts committed by the central government and local authorities throughout Albania; it asks the powers that be to respect local religions and ancient usages; to recognize the national existence of the Albanians; to insure us freedom at elections; to restore to us the right to use our own language and to send our children to our own schools; to favor a system of administrative decentralization; to modify the method of appointing valis and other important functionaries; to select an impartial representative to enforce reforms and maintain order; to make needed changes in the system of recruiting for the imperial army; to apply the funds derived from certain local taxes to local usages, such as the construction of roads; to organize 'conseils genereux' charged with control of provincial budgets and to provide funds for rebuilding dwellings which have been destroyed. Lastly, it demands the restoration, on suitable conditions, of our surrendered arms.

"I don't know yet whether I shall go next to London, Rome or Paris. Time was when I should have hoped much of France, much of England, but England has no Gladstone now and France is up to her neck in the Morroccan difficulties. And Europe has, alas no conscience left.

"Our last and best living hope lies in the sympathy, the hearts and the moral influence of America. I pray that we may not have hoped in vain."

ORDERS INQUEST IN IPSWICH MAN'S DEATH

IPSWICH, July 17.—District Attorney Harry Atwill has ordered an inquest into the death of Charles Buzzell, a farmer of Ipswich, whose body was found in the Ipswich River Friday. The inquest may be held to-day. When an autopsy was performed on the body of Buzzell there was no water found in his lungs, thus leading to the belief that he was dead before striking the water.

Secret Bride of Harvard Man

MRS. ELEANOR M. VAN BRUNT

She was Miss Eleanor McConnell of New York. Permission to marry was denied while Mr. Van Brunt was in Harvard.

With the parental blessing that they had failed to get at the time of their Boston courtship, Cortland Van Brunt, graduate of Harvard and the Boston School of Architecture and heir to the Kansas City Van Brunt fortune, and his bride, Eleanor McConnell, daughter of former Judge Samuel Parsons McConnell, jurist and financier of New York, are to-day on their way to the bride's sister's home in Chicago. The announcement of their marriage on May 5, which had been kept a profound secret, is a surprise to their Boston friends.

The most romantic part of the affair is their Boston courtship and their inability to obtain sanction of Judge McConnell to their marriage, although Van Brunt was a college graduate and young architect. The judge said his prospective son-in-law must win a place in the world before he would consent to a marriage to his daughter. But the couple refused to wait.

Miss Eleanor met Cortland Van Brunt a year ago. She was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Folinsbee of No. 65 Bellevue place, Chicago, and he the guest of his sister, Mrs. Mary Washburn. The Folinsbees and Washburns are neighbors in Chicago.

When Miss Eleanor came East to spend the fall of 1910 with her father, Van Brunt followed, and after repeated visits he confessed to Judge McConnell what the latter already had guessed—that he adored Miss Eleanor.

The young couple pleaded love at first sight, and begged sanction for an immediate wedding. Judge McConnell was austere. He said he had no more objection to Van Brunt than to any prospective son-in-law, but he insisted that the man who had won honors at Harvard and later graduated from a School of Architecture must win a master's degree in life's struggle.

Van Brunt and fiancee apparently bowed to the sentence, and so Van Brunt was permitted to call every third week at Oscawana.

On one of these visits, on May 5, the young couple motored to Newburg and overstayed their leave by several hours. Satisfactory explanations were made, but they kept secret the fact that the delay was caused by hunting up the Rev. Jeremiah Searles of the Newburg Methodist church, who married them.

COMPLAINT ON CAR SERVICE

The following letter has been received by the AMERICAN:

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

You are doing great work in what might be called civic emancipation and are entitled to proportionate credit for the results in some cases and to all the glory for the initiative in several cases. A seeming abuse of the public by the Boston & Worcester Street Railway Company on the evening of the 4th seemed to be an excellent opportunity for presenting the matter in mind.

Cars were held in a line, eight or ten of them, just outside of White's Corner, for fully two hours, and cars were run past them from Worcester seemingly until Worcester had been cleared of its outgoing crowd.

Get Nickels for Nothing.

If an individual sells to another party goods which he does not possess, he renders himself liable to the penalty of the law, but if street car companies with the idea possibly of accommodating some of the travelling public and at the same time adding considerably to their income, deliberately put into service every car in their possession and attempt to operate the whole caboodle with an electric generative equipment good for not more than half the increased demand, are not those electric transportation companies selling something they know they cannot deliver.

For instance, say the capacity is fifty cars and 100 cars are put into operation, don't those cars move never more than fifty at the same time and the other fifty cars necessarily wait their turn. The consequence is that a trip ordinarily covered in 2:20 takes about five hours, as it did on the evening of the Fourth.

The facts appear to be that after having sold its complete stock of transportation service between Boston & Worcester, and of course having collected the transportation charges, the crowd from Worcester had to be cared for; most of them were going to cities and towns in the neighborhood and might patronize rival lines, steam or electric. Therefore inasmuch as business is business and the gathering in of the dollar wherever visible its chief essential, extra cars were put into service and the power that had been sold the traveling public was taken away from them, temporarily withheld, until the late comers, who had bought transportation which the Car Service Company was not possessed of, could be railroaded off into the country, their car fares of course being carefully collected during the trip; then, the public who originally bought the electric juice and were its proper owners, were accorded a resumption of the trip from Boston to Worcester which they were entitled to and doubtless the crowd from Worcester, whose transportation by the way, we people from Boston actually prepaid, would be sidetracked out in the woods until the bunch of cars, held for about two hours outside of White's Corner could be carried to Worcester with the power originally sold to the passengers thereon.

Who Paid the Fares?

Meanwhile, the passengers who had bought transportation which was not the property of the transportation company but who had been carried along by power rightfully owned by the occupants of the ten or twelve cars laying at White's Corner for two hours; and when those original passengers had been delivered in Worcester and the title to the electric transportation power had again passed to the transportation company, it could, and not until then begin to equitably furnish the passengers from Worcester with power which was in reality within its proper control.

True the occasion was the Fourth, and everyone was good natured, but the equities of the situation would seem to call for some State supervision which would be able to discover any instance where street car companies sell transportation in excess of their capacity and then play lally with their patrons.

Yours,
TRANSPORTATION.

LABOR LEADERS FILE ANSWER

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Samuel Gompers, president; John Mitchell, vice-president, and Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, through their attorneys, Ralston, Siddons and Richardson, have filed their answer to Justice Wright in the District Supreme Court in the labor contempt case.

The reply does not apologize to the court for alleged contempt in the Buck Stove & Range Company case, as required by Justice Wright on the recommendation of a committee of lawyers appointed by the court to determine whether or not an apology should be demanded.

The report of the committee said:

"That the defendants be prepared to make such due acknowledgment, apology and assurance of future submission to the courts as may sufficiently answer the necessary purpose of vindicating its authority and that of the law."

Denial of the right of the court to require an apology and declaration that the defendants have never been guilty of contempt of court are included in the reply. Although the reply was filed to-day there will be no hearing of the case until the Fall term of the court.

After the United States Supreme Court had held that the jail sentence was not correctly imposed, Justice Wright appointed a committee to investigate the proceedings, and if evidence warranted to start a new case. This committee included J. J. Darlington of this city; James M. Beck of New York, and Daniel Davenport of Bridgeport, Ct.

DINNEEN HEADS C. T. A. REGIMENT

Maurice Dinneen has been elected colonel of the new Catholic Total Abstinence Union regiment, the first body of its kind ever formed under the auspices of the union. The announcement was made at the monthly meeting of the Hibernian Total Abstinence Association, No. 1, of Boston, held in Rathbone Hall.

The session was the last to be held before the national convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America, which takes place at Scranton, Pa., in the early part of next month, in which the members have an unusual interest.

Maurice Dinneen, secretary of the Boston Union, presided.

Cornelius J. Shea of St. Patrick's T. A. and L. Society of Roxbury, on behalf of the committee on military affairs, which has had in charge the formation of a Catholic T. A. Union regiment, reported that several companies had already been organized and were uniformed.

He further reported that the following officers had been elected to command the new regiment: Colonel Maurice Dinneen; Lieutenant-Colonel Cornelius J. Shea of Roxbury; Major William M. Anderson of Malden, and Major S. Frene of Revere; Adjutant J. D. Farrell of Roxbury, and Dr. Joseph L. Sullivan, surgeon.

It was unanimously voted that the annual reunion and outing of the association be held at Castle Island on Sunday, August 20, when the sixteenth anniversary of the organization of the Association will be celebrated.

20 KILLED IN GERMAN WRECK

BERLIN, July 17.—Twenty persons were killed to-day and many others injured, several of them fatally, in the most disastrous wreck in the history of German railroading when the express train running from Basle, Switzerland, to Frankfort-on-Main became derailed and crashed into another train at Mulheim.

Most of the killed and injured were on the Basle express. The wreckage caught fire immediately and the uninjured passengers labored with the railroad employes to rescue the imprisoned victims. The express was running at high speed when it was derailed, and it hit the ensuing train with terrific force just as it was entering the station.

First reports said that but eight had been killed. When the wreckage was partly cleared up, however, twelve additional bodies were found. The death list will probably grow much longer, as at least fourteen of the injured are in critical condition, while twenty others are more or less cut and bruised.

AVIATOR MARS IS RECOVERING RAPIDLY

ERIE, Pa., July 17.—J. C. (Bud) Mars, who was hurt when he fell with his aeroplane here last Friday, is rapidly recovering at the Hamot Hospital here. He sat up for several hours, was able to eat well, and he is now out of danger. It is expected he will be able to leave the hospital in another week.

MALDEN MAN SHOOTS SELF

An aftermath of the terrible heat of July 4 came to-day when Patrick Walsh, who boards at No. 233 Pearl street, Malden, shot himself in the side with a shotgun and wounded himself so badly that it was said that he would not recover.

Walsh had been acting queerly, and yesterday he said to some of his friends:

"The heat on July 4 affected me. I have not felt well since."

Treatment was suggested and Walsh went to bed last night, apparently in a more cheerful frame.

At 7:30 o'clock to-day the other tenants in the house were startled by the report of a shot from the direction of the man's room. An investigation showed that he had shot himself, and that he lay on the floor in a dying condition.

Dr. George I. Farrell was called and did what he could to bind up the terrible wound. The man was then hurried to the Malden Hospital. He is thirty-five years old and unmarried.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY

is what one young woman called it. What would you call an optician who charged you $5 for a pair of $1 glasses? These unscrupulous [illegible] operators [illegible] make a [illegible] with their weird apparatus, [illegible] and solemnly pronounce it "a very serious case," requiring the most skilful treatment and special lenses, and if you fall for it you are [illegible] seven or eight good American dollars for a pair of glasses such as Wilson Bros. are selling every day for $2 or $3. Of course there are exceptional cases requiring special lenses, but ask the people who get stung! [illegible] Remember WILSON Bros., the [illegible] jewelers, employ graduate opticians and grind their own prescription lenses on the premises in full view of customers. Eyes tested free. Their only store, next to Big Tabernacle, open evenings. A safe place to trade.

M'INTOSH PLANS MANY BIG BOUTS

By RILEY.

For years Jim Coffroth, Jack Gleason, Jack Carey and Tex Rickard have been rated as the kings of the fight promoters. But inside of the short space of little over two years a new promoter has come to the front in leaps and bounds and is now making drastic efforts to be crowned king of them all. His name is Hugh McIntosh and he calls Australia home.

McIntosh's first big venture in the way of promoting fistic affairs was in December 1908, when he staged the battle between Jack Johnson and Tommy Burns, in which the Galveston negro won the heavyweight championship of the world. Since that time McIntosh has been an international figure in all things pugilistic.

Plans Battles for "Hopes."

McIntosh now plans to hold a series of battles between the best heavyweights in the world to decide which of all the "hopes" is the best man to send against the champion. McIntosh intends to hold all of the battles within a period of sixteen months. Whether or not he will be able to successfully carry through such a gigantic project waits to be seen.

The promoter from the land of the Kangaroo also announces that he has matched Sam McVey to meet Al Kaufman in Europe or Australia some time this Fall. Both of these men are rugged fighters and should put up a good mill.

Kaufman was recently knocked out in ten rounds by Pueblo Jim Flynn. Before his go with the former fireman Al was rated as the best white heavyweight in the land. But since Jim slipped across the K. O. Kaufman has lost the greater amount of his former prestige.

Kaufman and McVey Lack Class.

For the past few years, McVey has been showing his skill over in Gay Paree. Last Winter he fought a twenty-round draw with Sam Langford of Cambridge. Those at the ringside, however, say that the Boston Tar Baby had the French idol beaten at every point of the game and should have been given the decision by Referee Corl. Neither Kaufman nor McVey are anywhere near as good boxers as Johnson.

In the Spring McIntosh intends to match Bill Lange and Sam Langford. He also plans a Johnson-Lange fight. Lange has shown in this country on several occasions and has yet to set any houses afire by his work in the twenty-four foot ring. In his battle with Al Kaufman in Philadelphia the Californian had it all over the mitt dispenser from the Antipodes.

If Joe Woodman's protege is matched up with Lange he should send the Australian on a trip to Slumberland inside of the limit. McIntosh says Lange has improved wonderfully during the past year and that he is now a better two-handed fighter than Langford. If McIntosh holds this view with all sincerity he is very likely to get a sudden awakening after Sam has been in the ring with Bill for several rounds.

Langford is, without the least semblance of a doubt, the best man in the world at his weight. During his career he has time and again fought men from twenty to forty pounds heavier in weight and he has yet to be beaten.

The star heavyweights know and fear Sam. In fact, it has now got to the place where Langford cannot get a match with a heavyweight of importance on account of the regard that they have for those two big black hands of his which have sent so many aspirants for honors in the sport presided over by the rules of the late Marquis of Queensbury reeling through the ropes.

But granting that Langford is the survivor of these elimination bouts which McIntosh plans. Will Johnson then agree to meet Sam? And if so who will win?

Johnson has always claimed since he became champion that a fight between two blacks would not draw any kind of a house. And he speaks the truth as far as this country is concerned.

Sam Is Some Fighter.

Langford fought Johnson a fifteen-round fight over in Chelsea a few years ago. In this mill the Cambridge scrapper gave Johnson one of the greatest battles he has ever experienced in his long career. But Jack was given the decision by the referee.

Both Johnson and Langford are hard hitters, clever boxers and masters of every wrinkle of the fight game. If they meet it will be a clever big man against a clever little man.

History [illegible] that the clever big man usually w[illegible] but will he in this case? Th[illegible] followers of the world of [illegible] throughout the civilized world would [illegible] know, and they are likely to be [illegible] within a year for Johnson will soon have to give in to the public who desire to see him and Langford meet in a battle for the heavyweight championship of the world.

ST. JOSEPHS CLAIM THEY ARE CHAMPIONS

The strong St. Joseph's team of Somerville has won all but one of its games and claims the championship of the State. All teams disputing such claim are openly challenged to a game at or away from home.

The lineup has been strengthened considerably by the addition of such men as Mahoney, last year's captain of Boston College and formerly of Holy Cross; Carrigan of the Lynn, N. E. League team, as catcher. Mulianey, of Stoughton, Old Colony League team, is playing the outfield; McGrath, who has been their mainstay at first, is having an excellent year.

Dunleavy is a fleet-footed outfielder. He is batting for .421. Maher is covering short in good style and the same is said of M'Gonagle at second base. Challenges are out for such teams as the Bay Views of South Boston, Bennetts of Somerville and Winchester A. A., of Winchester. Address all communications to Thomas Maher, 20 Hanson street. Tel. Som. 2826-R., Somerville, Mass.

POWER BOAT BREAKS DOWN IN BIG RACE

NEW YORK, July 17.—The motor boat Inevitable, owned by Alexander Johnson, one of the competing craft in the Huntington-Marblehead race, got only as far as Falkner's Island, off Guilford, Ct., in Long Island Sound. She broke down at that point early Friday evening and went out of the race. Her owner secured a tow for her back to New Rochelle, where she was berthed.

SOMERVILLE BOY TO PLAY WITH CINCINS

Tom Greive, the Somerville boy who was recently traded with Pitcher Humphries by the Philadelphia Nationals for Beck of Cincinnati, left last night on the midnight train for Cincinnati and will report to Manager Griffith to-morrow. There was a large crowd of his friends at the South Station to see him off. Greive is a third baseman.

ABE ATTELL IS BOXING WIZARD

By H. M. WALKER.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17.—Abie Attell, for years the unflinching ruler of the 122-pound division and a holy terror to many of the would-be 133-pound champions, is chafing under an enforced period of idleness, every hour of which means a financial loss to the holder of the featherweight title.

Attell, the best boy of his weight that ever breathed the breath of life, the fastest, cleverest and most brainy boxer of his pounds and inches in the world, the the most treacherous and uncertain betting proposition that the ring has ever known, is kept outside the ropes on account of an injured arm.

It was in Cleveland last Spring that the champion sustained the injury. He and little Tommy Kilbane went to the floor with a crash during a mixup in one of the corners, and when Attell raised himself from the choking cloud of resin dust one of his arms hung limply at his side and a sharp pain in his shoulder told Abie in the flash of a second what it took the hospital doctors several minutes to determine.

What the pen is to the artist, the voice to the singer or the tool to the mechanic is the arm to the boxer. It is his bread-winner, and an injury to a finger may prove his undoing.

Carried His Own Scenery.

Abie believed in keeping busy. If he couldn't box a high-class boy of his own weight for "big" money, he would jump out of his class and carry trouble to the lightweights, or would go on a "barnstorming" tour, furnishing his own opponents. Carrying his own scenery was one of the best things that the crafty champion did, and his questionable work in some of these bouts in the kerosene belt soon taught the wise speculators the advisability of sewing up their pockets.

The return of Attell will be watched closely by fight fans the world over. That the featherweight champion, marvelous performer though he has been in the past, can come back as good as new is more than the most optimistic of his admirers can hope for. Whether he figures to hold tight to his justly earned crown will probably be shown the very first time that Attell meets a good boy.

Welsh Only Man to Beat Him.

Science alone won ninety-nine per cent. of Attell's battles. A veritable wizzard of the ring the master of all trickery of the game, Abie has beaten many a man without his victim's really knowing how it all came about.

But one man ever beat Attell at the latter's own game, and it took a full-fledged lightweight to turn this trick. Freddie Welsh, the English lad, dazzled every man, including Attell, about the ringside when he defeated Abe by outboxing him all the way in their fifteen-round affair at Vernon a few years ago.

KILLILAY HAS YET TO LOSE ONE GAME

Covington of Detroit added another game to his credit last week, and although tied with Killilay in the standing, has three more wins to his credit than the Boston man. All the Tiger pitchers benefited their standing last week at the expense of the Athletics. Lafitte now has the best record of any of the regular pitchers of the Detroit team, having secured ten out of eleven games. Mullin got back into the game after a long rest and subdued the terrified Athletics without exertion. He showed, too, that his enforced rest had not dimmed his batting eye. The records:

JACK JOHNSON TO FIGHT WELLS

LONDON, July 17.—Articles have been signed for a fight in London before September 30 betwen Jack Johnson and Bombardier Wells for the championship of the world and $40,000.

Most Englishmen consider Wells will have small chance against the heavyweight champion.

Wells has been one of the many "white hopes" dug up since the Johnson-Jeffries battle at Reno, Nev., July 4, 1910, but has scarcely been against a good man of his weight.

He got his first real tryout in London in October last year, after which it was pronounced that he needed more weight and experience and the hopes of the whites went glimmery.

On April 25 of the present year he was brought out again in London, making a chopping block of Dan Hague at the National Sporting Club for the English heavyweight title and the Lonsdale belt. Hague was knocked out in the sixth round and Wells's friends again took courage.

Two weeks later, March 8, Wells and "Porky" Flynn of Boston went 20 rounds at the Olympia, the Englishman winning the decision by a wide margin. In the sixth round of this bout, Wells sent Flynn to the floor twice, sent him down again in the ninth, and in the twentieth knocked the Boston man through the ropes. But he could not put "Porky" out, and again the experts said Wells was not the "White Hope" required.

Horse News and Stable Gossip

The four-year-old sister of Cochato, 2:12¼, in Millard Drinkwater's stable at the Readville track, can beat 2:20. She will make a very fast trotter.

* * *

The Allen Farm youngsters, which are being trained over the Poughkeepsie track by John Young, look to be the best lot that the noted breeding establishment has ever put in training.

* * *

Five trotters have already entered the 2:10 list this season. The fastest is Don Labor, that in his first start, at Indianapolis lowered his former record of 2.10¼ to 2:05¼ in a winning race. Anvil, 2:10, one of the new ones is only a four-year-old. He is in Geer's stable and well staked.

* * *

Trainer Jimmy Carpenter has several trotters in his Readville stable that look to be very promising candidates for the 2:10 list this season. Last week Jim drove the bay mare Annie Kohl a mile in 2:10¼.

* * *

Arlo Leyburn, the son of Arion, 2:07¾, that put in three heats at Indianapolis in 2:07¼, should be one of the best class trotters of the year.

* * *

The three-year-old colt Border King, by Border Knight, 2:12¼, has trotted a mile in 2:15. Trainer Perry Miller says that this chap is the most promising that he has ever had anything to do with.

* * *

The trotting mare Lady Tilly, by Todd, 2:14¾, dam Matilda, by Nutwood, 2:18¾, has been a mile in 2:14¼ over the Readville track.

* * *

Zombrewer, 2:04¼, the fastest pacer of the season, is a daughter of Zombro, 2:11, the best son of McKinney, 2:11¼.

* * *

Trainer Bob Lundy is now located at the Readville track with three head belonging to the Hall family. The four-year-old filly, Belle Todd, 2:14¾, out of Belgard, 2:16, is showing a lot of speed in her work. A three-year-old full sister to this mare is also pleasing Lundy very much by the way that she is working.

* * *

George Hicks, who was one of the prominent New England trainers twenty-five years ago, but who retired from the sulky a number of years ago, is getting a lot of fun in training the green trotting mare, Lulu Lou, that he has placed in Ed Bitlers' stable at the Readville track. Mr. Hicks drove the mare a mile in 2:28, to cart, last week and she can step in 2.20 any time when asked.

* * *

Nat Ray's good pacer, Knight Onwondo, that has been doing so well in the half-mile tracks up in Canada, now carries a record of 2:11¼.

* * *

As the time for the racing of the two Detroit classics, the Merchants' and Manufacturers' stake for trotters and the Chamber of Commerce for pacers approaches, it is becoming harder to pick winners than [illegible] authorities thought it was earlier in the season. It was always thus.

NAPS BUY FIELDER.

NEW ORLEANS, July 17.—The New Orleans Southern League Club announced the sale of Outfielder Barr to the Cleveland club. Barr will not report to Cleveland until the end of the season.

MANY BOXERS BUT FEW BOUTS

By ED W. SMITH

"Water, water everywhere, but not one drop to drink," went the telling line in an old melodrama, when the hero found himself adrift in an ordinary rowboat on the ocean after the big shipwreck.

That's extctly the siuation in the boxing game as far as the matches known as "big cards" are concerned.

The country, the whole world, for that matter, is alive with boxers of all sorts, but there is scarcely one good match in sight.

If you had a boxing club and wanted a real match, one that would draw the real money, with real fighters, what match would you go after?

Of course you'd naturally say a battle between Ad Wolgast and Packey McFarland would be the candy. It would. But could you arrange it? Nay, nay, when the smartest impresarios in the business have failed.

Could you get a good drawer among the heavyweights? Possibly you might work up some interest in a battle in which Jim Flynn would meet some good second rater, but it would be Hamlet with the Dane eliminated to do anything among the heavies with J. Johnson.

Billy Papke could furnish some interest among the middleweights, but Bill is enjoying the marvelous sights of the Old World just at present and isn't in any mood or any hurry to return to America.

There is no such thing in this country as a welterweight class, so we will have to skim over that division.

Perhaps almost any old match with Wolgast as a factor might do pretty well, as the champion is the one big card in pugilism at the present time, but unless you hooked up Packey McFarland with him or managed to get Matt Wells, the English champion, whittled down to reasonable size you wouldn't have a real match on hand.

There isn't anything doing in that interesting division known as the feathers. The boss of the job, Abe Attell, is in idleness and shows no inclination to even discuss fights, let alone engage in one personally. He is doing his best at the vaudeville game and making good, 'tis said, so why should he worry while Jose Rivers, the Los Angeles Mexican, is cracking the jawbones of those who have the temerity to go near him?

MARQUARD LEADS NATIONAL PITCHERS

Rube Marquard of the Giants still tops the National League pitchers in the games won, having landed the one game he pitched last week, and now having 10 wins and two losses. He has now won six games running, and although he has been hit hard at times, his strikeouts still run high. Matty added another defeat to his last week, but also scored a win, trimming the Reds for his twentieth straight game, covering three seasons.

JOHN L. GOES BACK TO NATURE

Brockton got its first peep at John L. Sullivan, one time champion prize fighter of the world, as he strolled along Main street to-day, laden with bundles. Thousands stopped and watched the avoirdupois gentleman of which they had heard and read so much, and John L. accepted their greetings in his good-natured way and shook the hands of all.

Back to Nature.

It's back to nature for John L. He and his wife have purchased a seventy-acre farm at West Abington and are fitting the farmhouse up preparatory to moving in. They are shopping in Brockton and intend to make the old homestead as comfortable as possible so that they may spend their remaining days in happiness. Except for a short vaudeville tour, the ex-champion and his wife will remain at West Abington definitely.

The big fellow hates to talk (?), and only after a great effort were the following aphorisms procured:

"I'm pretty heavy now, but keep in good health and spirits by following the don't worry rule.

"I let the other fellow do the worrying and it keeps him lean.

"I'll bet John D. isn't getting along half as well and isn't half as happy as I am to-day.

"Andie Carnegie is busy giving away libraries and John D. is easing his conscience by giving away his spoils to universities; but I am more popular than either of them.

Still Popular.

"More folks run to see me than chase after Pierpont, John or Andy, and everybody seems to like me because I feel that I am living honestly, faithfully and truthfully and doing the right thing by my fellowmen.

"We are not as strong a people as we were years ago. Folks are so busy chasing the almighty dollar that we are weak as a people.

"There are no fights nowadays as we used to know them. The fellows in the game now are in it to make money, but they don't give the people a decent run for their money.

"I don't know of any 'White Man's Hope.'

"Back to the farm for me."

CLARKE IS AFTER KRAMER'S RECORD

NEWARK, N. J., July 17.—Jackie Clarke, the Australian cyclist, got after the title held by Frank Kramer again, by winning the five-mile event at the Velodrome. Goullete was second and Kramer, who delayed too long his final spurt, came in third. This shortens Kramer's lead for the season to seven points, the champion having 38 and Clarke 31. Elmer Collins of Lynn, Mass., holder of the record for the one-mile motor-paced race, won this even in 1:14. The record is 1:13 4-5. George Wiley and Clarence Carmen finished second and third, respectively. The two-mile handicap was won by Willie Fenn (115 yards) in 3:48 1-5. John Bedell, 100 yards, and Fred Hill, 95 yards, finished second and third, respectively.

NEW MOTOR CYCLE RECORD IS MADE

NEW YORK, July 17.—Volney E. Davis of San Francisco whirled into New York at noon Sunday, winner of the transcontinental race and holder of a new time record. He made the trip of 3,745 miles in twenty days nine hours and a minute and spent ten hours a day in the saddle. He lost eleven pounds and sustained a bruised leg, a sprained shoulder, numerous cuts and many falls.

W. C. Beaman and Paul E. Kottlowsky, cyclists who started eight and nine days ahead of him, Davis said, were passed near Buffalo.

CRICKET PLAYERS HERE FROM CANADA

NEW YORK, July 17.—The flower of Canada's cricket players have invaded the United States with a ten-day campaign ahead, during which they expect to gather fresh laurels in contests with Americans in this city and Philadelphia. The New York and New Jersey clubs, the New York veteran cricketers, and the champion Staten Island Cricket Club are on this week's card. A two-day match with the Philadelphia Cricket Club is planned for next week. Among the visitors is the famed Toronto Cricket Club eleven.

was going to quit the club and would leave for home Sunday. 'All right, Charlie,' I said, 'goodby, and I hope that you will find some other business at which you can make more money than you are making in baseball.'"

Continuing, Mr. Russell said: "I shall not sell Herzog. I shall not trade him, and I shall not release him. He will play with the Boston club and play as well as he is able, or he will go back to Maryland and raise potatoes. One thing is certain: he will play with no other club in organized baseball.

Had Disturbing Influence.

"Herzog has had a disturbing influence in the team. He has been telling the men they were not being paid enough and spreading discontent among them.

"When we made that deal in Chicago he came to me and said he understood that Kling was getting a higher salary than he, and he wanted more money.

"You are getting $3,600 for six months' work, according to your contract, I told him, and you have a chance to get $300 more than the contract calls for in the way of bonus.

"He told me that I might just as well trade him; that he was dissatisfied with Boston. I told him we did not want to trade him; that we needed him in the club.

Gave Herzog Warning.

"Manager Tenney then reported to me that Herzog was sulking and playing carelessly. We decided to warn him that he must play his best, and, as there was no apparent change we decided to punish him. Manager Tenney punished him in about the only way he could punish him and that was through his pocket. He fined him $300, but told him if he went on and played as well as he could play, the fine would be refunded at the end of the season.

"If he were improperly fined he has recourse to the National Commission, who will set it aside.

"If he was the best ball player in the world I could not allow him to conduct himself in the manner he has. It would destroy all discipline and contracts would be worthless. If I knew that we were going to lose every game for the balance of the season I should maintain the position the club has taken in Herzog's case.

"Herzog is a brilliant ball player and we want him and his best work.

In Favor of Miller.

"It is true that Miller is not drawing much more than he received in the minor league. I was in favor of increasing his salary this season, but the other directors were not in favor of so doing.

"Miller signed his contract this year without asking for an increase in salary. He came to me in Pittsburg and asked that he be given an increase. I told him that if business warranted it, and his work was satisfactory, I would give him $300 extra at the end of the season, but that the matter must be left to my discretion. I gave him a memorandum to this effect.

"The other day he came around and asked that $800 more be added to this $300, and I told him that I would not do it, that I could not be changing contracts every day.

How Tenney Feels.

Manager Tenney had this to say regarding the fine imposed upon Herzog:

"When the Boston club was in Chicago and we made that deal with the Cubs, Herzog told me that I might as well trade him, that he would not be satisfied to play ball for Boston.

"I told him I did not want to trade him. I said that he was well paid for giving his best efforts to the Boston club, and I should expect him to do so.

"He began playing indifferently, and I fined him. I told him if he would go in and play as well as he could for the remainder of the season the fine would be remitted, and he has that promise in a letter which I wrote to him.

BUGS RAYMOND WAS CLOSE TO DEATH

"Bugs" Raymond, the pitcher of the Giants, who is in disgrace at present, had a narrow escape from death in making a back dive in three feet of water while swimming at One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street, New York, last week. He struck the bottom with his head and barely escaped breaking his neck. He was pulled from the water in a dazed condition, but soon recovered.

TYPOS PUTTING UP GOOD BALL

Two winnigs by the Globe team last week, defeating the Herald and American, removes the team from the foot of the ladder and places it within striking distance of the leaders. No games on the part of the Herald, Journal and Traveler on Thursday allowed the Monitor team to steal a lap and land in third position.

The scheduled games for the coming week are as follows:

Tuesday, July 18—Herald vs. Post, Transcript vs. Monitor, Globe vs. Traveler.

Thursday, July 20—Journal vs. Globe, Post vs. American, Herald vs. Traveler.

The Monitor-Post postponed game of June 8 will be played off on Thursday, June 27.

FRASER IS RELEASED.

The New Orleans (Southern League) Club has sold Outfielder Barr to the Cleveland Club, to report to Cleveland at the end of the season. New Orleans also gave Pitcher "Chick" Fraser, the former major leaguer, his unconditional release.

BASEBALL CHATTER

Here's a suggestion for President Tom Lynch of the National League. When one of the ball players makes an apparently unprovoked assault on an umpire, such as Sherwood Magee's, allow the player to remain in the game the following day and send a hurry call for Cy Rigler to umpire that game. Then instruct Cy to make every decision against this player until he says something harsh. Then order Cy to swing on him. Mr. Rigler might meet one or two athletes who have it on him in the manly art of self-defence, but he would make the majority look sick. Anyone who watched him in the Central League, where he got his start, can testify to his pugilistic ability. A hospital is not as pleasant a place in which to spend a vacation as is the Atlantic City boardwalk.

It isn't often that anybody wants to go to St. Louis, but it is safe to say that the Athletics were crazy to get there this time. Anywhere would have been a nice place to go after that horrible visit to Detroit. The champions were counting on an even break with the Tigers. They didn't expect much more than that because of their own crippled condition. But they never dreamed that the Tigers would trim them four straight. Philadelphia would probably have won two of the battles if Ty Cobb had been out of them. But Ty has a nasty habit of remaining able-bodied and refusing to lay off. He has been out of only one contest this season.

The Red Sox are a funny crowd. They are always deceiving their supporters, and causing a lot of unnecessary worry. Boston fans were well pleased when the team won three out of four at St. Louis, but very much down-hearted when it dropped three out of the first four at Chicago. Just when the fans were resigning themselves to welcome home a hopelessly second division club, up popped Ray Collins and Larry Pape and pitched the Sox to an even break with Duffy's men. They may drop the remaining games at Detroit, but they'll make up for it in Cleveland. That is their system to lead their followers to believe that they are hopeless, and then to send said followers into ecstasies with two or three unexpected victories.

COX TIPS HIS PACER TO WIN

KALAMAZOO, July 17.—The remarkable early season miles negotiated by Joe Patchen II. have so far failed to disturb the mental equanimity of Walter Cox, owner and driver of Branham Baugman, picked as the most likely candidate in the $5,000 Rickman Hotel pace here this week, the C. of C. at Detroit and other classics for side wheelers down the big line.

"Looks like R. J. McKenzie had picked up a great pacer in Joe Patchen II.," was about all Mr. Cox would say at the first discussion of the fast early miles that have been reeled off by the Canadian's pacer at the Indianapolis track. Taking a few pulls at his cigar he added: "I don't know whether all these fast miles so early in the year will do any good. Maybe; but for me I will be quite satisfied to have Branham Baugman ready to go a few fast, miles when the word is given at Kalamazoo. Barring accident, anyone who beats him will know he has been in a horse race."

"Let me see, you were the recipient of a lot of more or less favorable criticism last Fall on the strength of claims that you purposely refused to win with Branham Baugman during 1910?" was asked Mr. Cox.

"Yes, and they may be saying the same things about me next Fall, but that won't hurt any," was his prompt reply.

"Things don't always turn out just as you figure they will. Back in 1907, when I had old Jerry B. primed for the pacing classics the next year I read that George Gano had worked a mile at Columbus in 2:04¼, and so, just to be on the safe side, I bought Gano and had a pair that no one could tackle and defeat, but when 1908 rolled around I met Minor Heir and The Eel in every race, and you know the result.

"In 1910 Branham Baugman looked good enough to win, but he was forced to race against The Abbey all season long, and I consider that nag the best pacer of the lot. So it goes. Just what will come along this year is hard to say, but any one horse that beats him will have to step some."

Despite the hot weather at Recreation Park the horsemen have been busy with their stables and have made good progress in getting ready for the strenuous campaign ahead. The most notable mile was in 2:04¼, being negotiated by Branham Baughman and Earl, Jr., both in the stable by Walter Cox. Mary G. stepped in 2:09, King Cole in 2:09½, Ernest in 2:10¼, Vasten in 2:11 and 2:10. Norman Tallman worked Chatty Direct in close to 2:10 and Simon Kenton in 2:10¼.

BRESNAHAN SAYS CARDS. FOR PENNANT

"We have done well on the Eastern trip so far," said Roger Bresnahan of the St. Louis Cardinals after successive defeats by Boston and Brooklyn. "And if we arrive home as close to the top as we are now we will take the lead. Then nothing can stop us. We figure that the Giants alone will fight it out with us and they will not be easy.

"I'd like to come down to the wire neck and neck with my old friend McGraw and then beat him out. The Cubs are playing under a terrific strain that will kill them off, while the Pitsburgs have a weakness in the box that will prove fatal.

"We beat the Phillies easily in the recent series and we do not fear them at all. McGraw's men can hit and run the bases better than any team except the Cardinals, and it's a toss up in pitchers with Matty on the down grade. When it comes to a finish we will win out because we [illegible] up at home and will have [illegible] for us."

By R. W. LARDNER.

Another real bargain is on the bill today. There are to be two games with the Cubs for the price of one at the South End Grounds, and no train wreck is responsible either. It rained on the 25th day of May, and that's the reason.

Chicago wants both games. So does Boston. They won't do the Rustlers as much good, but the total of defeats is already so large that it's a hard job to write down the figures. Besides, there's that trade that still lacks justification in the minds of one or two local bugs. The more times the Rustlers beat the Cubs, the better the swap will look from a Massachusetts standpoint.

On a poetic basis, Chicago certainly put it over on us. None of the quartet landed from Chance's bunch can write or talk a line of original verse. Neither can Wilbur Goode, Cliff Curtis or Peaches Graham.

It's different with Bill Collins. He even thinks in rhyme. The shame of it is that all the poetry in the league is crowded into one club, for Frank Schulte is the only other member of Tom Lynch's organization who has that sort of talent.

They told us that it was a treat to hear dialogues between Frank and Bill. So we stood behind a door at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, or any part of the day, and, with slate and pencil ready, listened to the following:

MR. SCHULTE.

I'm glad that Chance picked Wilbur Goode
Out there in centre field to stood.
For 'twould have made me very ill
To have you as my side-kick, Bill.

MR. COLLINS.

Yes, jealousy's a fearful thing,
Because the poetry I sling
Is better than your awful verse,
You like Goode better, Collins worse.

MR. SCHULTE.

Such nerve as yours I never knew,
To call me jealous, and of you.
Just 'cause you're nimble with your feet
You needn't think your poems a treat.

MR. COLLINS.

Not only in my poetry
Am I superior to thee.
In all departments of the game
Advantages o'er you I'll name.

MR. SCHULTE.

Well, go ahead and name them, Bill.

MR. COLLINS.

You bet I will, you bet I will.
First, I can run from here to Brockton
While you are putting on one stocking
When I am on the coaching line,
My voice is loud, my pepper fine,
If they'd put you at first or third,
Nobody'd ever hear a word.
And Chance he keeps me on the beach
Just to advise him in a peach.
(Or, Chance he keeps me on the binch
Just to advise him in a pinch)
When he's uncertain what to do,
He never looks around for you.

MR. SCHULTE.

Well, have you any more to say?
And must I stand that stuff all day?
Ah, now you're done. Just stick around
And hear my side, you big grey-hound.
Now every day, and some days twice,
But once at least, when weather's nice,
I play right field and I bat second,
Right after S. James Tilden Sheckard.
Chance keeps me in the game, I guess,
Because you're such a wonder—yes?
But I don't like to brag and boast
And burn you to a black, crisp toast,
I'll let you off with one more clout—
I'm married, Bill. You're not. Get out.

NOBODY.

And Bill, he walked off, quite enraged,
Nor ever said: "But I'm engaged."

The Cubs can be forgiven if they don't think about baseball all the time, with stuff like that to distract their minds, to say nothing of the tales of Artie Hoffman and Jimmy Sheckard, and the strange antics of Lou Richie.

However, they do get their minds on the pastime once in a while, often enough to think that they're going to win that pennant.

Manager Chance is a rather ungrateful party, and an uncomplimentary one to boot. After receiving that bouquet from us you would naturally have thought he would have had something nice to say about Boston in general and the Rustlers in particular. Instead, he came back with this:

"I'd rather play with a good ball club than this team here." He didn't embellish that statement a bit, so you're at liberty to dope it out for yourselves.

DETROIT, July 17.—With the third game of the series to-day, Manager Donovan of the Red Sox determined, if such a thing is possible, to put a stop to the present winning career of the Tigers. The visitors have dropped both the engagements to date and to even up matters must capture to-day's and to-morrow's conflicts with the leaders.

However, unless the Red Sox get better pitching than Wood and Cicotte were able to furnish in the Detroit series they will be severely handicapped in the remaining games on their Western trip. No team can go into battle with the Tigers right now unless equipped with a twirler capable of holding Jennings's men to eight hits or less. Wood is just now sadly in need of rest. Cicotte pitched much better and managed to make the Tigers fight through the first half of the game. But Eddie seemed to lose heart over the failure of his mates to make runs for him and let up quite noticeably after the fifth inning.

Tigers Putting Up Great Ball.

As a matter of fact the Tigers are playing a well nigh invincible game of ball. Delehanty is batting in most sensational style, and even O'Leary has been hitting away over .300 since his team began its home stand three weeks ago. Jennings has Willetts, Summers, Donovan and Mullin—his veteran pitchers—in shape at last and is handing them to the Red Sox, one a day, with results inevitable, in view of the superiority of the Tiger twirlers.

Patsy Donovan has about decided that his left-handers may succeed where the others have failed, and will probably give Collins or Karger a chance to-day, reserving Pape for the final game of the series. Right now the last mentioned looks the best pitcher on the Boston list.

A novel feature of yesterday's game was the fact that in it figured three players who were mixed up in one of the most epoch making deals in baseball. The Detroit club trained at Atlanta, Ga., in the spring of 1905, and when the time came to leave handed over Eddie Cicotte as ground rent. Manager Armour making the agreement that at the end of the season he was to get Cicotte back or else take the pick of the Augusta club for $700. The stars of the Augusta club that year were Cicotte, Cobb and Engle, the last being at second base, the position which he played yesterday.

Nearly Lost Cobb.

It is solemn truth that Armour was at first inclined to take Engle, who was hitting nearly as well as Cobb, and while not so fast was considered in Augusta as a better player. At the last moment, however, Armour decided to take the bigger gamble. Cicotte started off well that year and both he and Engle went to Class A league company at the close. Yesterday was the first time that the Augusta trio had held a reunion, each in the position he occupied with the little club in the "Sally" league.

In the meantime, when Detroiters are reminded how near Armour came to picking Engle and leaving Cobb for some other club, they shudder, even though they admit that Engle is a valuable man to any club, for all Detroit believes that there are two kinds of big league ball players—Cobb and the rest.

WOLGAST GETS BIG GUARANTEE

CHICAGO, July 17.—Jimmy Coffroth, the San Francisco fight promoter, to-day wired his representative here authorizing him to guarantee Ad Wolgast $17,000, win, lose or draw, and one-third of the pictures, if he would fight Packey McFarland twenty rounds either in August or September.

Ad is willing to battle Packey, but the best he will do in the weight line is 133 pounds three and one-half hours before fighting. Packey wants 135 four hours before. It is possible that each side may waive a bit and that the match will be at 133 pounds five hours before.

Wolgast is in Cadillac to-day and will be here to-morrow. Should he fail to accept, Coffroth will try to match McFarland and Wells, or Packey and "Knockout" Brown.

STOP BASEBALL AT FORT.

Sunday baseball at Fort Banks, Winthrop, was discontinued yesterday. Whether the games have been stopped indefinitely could not be learned at the headquarters. It is known the opponents of Sunday baseball have not let up an iota and have been in communication constantly with Washington, although no definite information has been received by them that the games have been stopped again.

SUBSCRIBE FOR OLYMPIC TEAM

The American Olympic committee has started a campaign to raise $30,000 in order to defray the expenses of the American Olympic team which will go to Stockholm, Sweden, to battle for Uncle Sam in 1912. The Amateur Athletic Union has started the ball rolling by donating a check for $1,000.

It is expected that the lead of the A. A. U. will be followed by the leading sportsmen in the country. Gustavus T. Kirby, S. R. Guggenheim, Frederick Pratt and other prominent lovers of clean sport may be relied upon to subscribe fancy sums to the fund.

During the past few years J. P. Morgan, Andrew Carnegie and J. D. Rockefeller have given away millions of dollars for public works. The American Olympic committee will try and convince these men that they could not pull off any better public act than to boost the fund for the Olympic team.

The Olympic committee plans to hold trials in every section of the country next Spring. The committee has practically decided upon San Francisco, Seattle and Portland for the Pacific Coast trials, Chicago, Cleveland and Cincinnati for the middle West, and Philadelphia, New York and Boston for the East.

B. A. A. to Hold Trials.

It is very probable that the B. A. A. track and field championships, which are held every Spring at Tech field, will be used as a tryout for New England men. These games have always brought out some high class performers.

Only three athletes will be permitted to compete in each event in 1912. In former years, six men have been allowed to enter each contest. As a result of this latest ruling the number of men that will take the trip across the big pond may be cut down. This is not assured, however, as the Olympic committee may desire to enter men in events in which the United States has formerly had no entries.

Next year the outdoor swimming championships do not take place until late in the season. It is therefore very likely that the men who will battle for Old Glory in the water at Stockholm will be selected from those making the best showing at the indoor championships which will be held sometime during January.

Good Hurdlers Needed.

At the present time it is up to those in charge of the American Olympic committee to get busy and develop somebody who will be able to win points in the 400-meter race. Just now there is not a man in the United States capable of doing the 400-meter hurdle race in any kind of good time.

Bacon and Hillman have now retired from active competition. In their day these two flyers were in a class by themselves. But they did not gain this high point of efficiency until after years of hard training. In fact, Bacon trained eighteen months in preparation for the 400-meter hurdle race at the 1908 Olympic games.

As a result of this lack of good timber topplers who can go 400-meters at top speed the American Olympic committee should use its influence in having this event put on the program of all of the big outdoor meets this Summer and next spring.

A City of Dreadful and Splendid Night

By DOROTHY DIX

IN Summer New York is the City of Dreadful Night and the City of Splendid Night.

It is the City of Dreadful Night for the poor, who pray and pant through the long hours of smothering blackness for a breath of fresh air, a waft of coolness.

And it is the City of Splendid Night for the rich, whose money makes even nature their slave, and whose pleasures take on a delicate fillip of added enjoyment from unconscious contrast with the sweltering misery around them.

There is, of course, always the eternal contrast between wealth and poverty, but never is it so sharp as in Summer, or so poignant, as when one sees, side by side, two such pictures as the artist has depicted here.

It is night, a hot, palpitating night after a breathless day. Darkness has fallen over the city, and there have flowered on the housetops those strange, exotic gardens in which the blooms are humanity.

One of these roof gardens is down in a poor and squalid part of the city, where the streets are narrow, and the houses lean close together so that any stray breeze that may wander in gets lost and dies on the heavy, fetid air that is full of odors.

It is part of the city in which humanity is packed twelve deep, in the dirty, decaying old houses, where the streets are filthy and where every breath seems to have pollution in it.

A hot wave in Summer brings the terrors of hell to such a place. Little children wither and die in it. Ill-nurtured men and women faint under it. Stuffy rooms, in which irons must be kept hot to press work, and food cooked, yet in which people must live and work and sleep—if they can—become torture chambers.

What wonder then, that all who can seek the roof at night to try to find a little air, some place in which they can breathe? So you have one roof garden—not the kind of which New York boasts or which it takes strangers to see—but the roof garden of which there are thousands and thousands in the City of Dreadful Night.

See on it a pallid-faced woman and a worn and weary man, and in their arms a sickly child, blighted by the heat. A clothes line with the poor wash that the woman's work-knotted hands have done flaps limply in the still air. The heat still comes up to them in sickening waves from the torrid street beneath, but they make their bed on the roof, waiting with the pathetic patience of the poor for the little breath of cool air that will save their babe—if God is good to them.

Turn to the roof garden, high up on top of a gilded restaurant. It is the heart of the City of Splendid Night, beautiful as a fairy scene. No Summer here, or Summer tempered so it merely warms the blood and makes the laughter lighter and brighter.

Flowers bloom, faded lights dazzle, cool breezes blow apparently off banks of snow, ice tinkles, deft servants move noiselessly about, anticipating every want, sensuous music pulsates on the air—nothing that human ingenuity can invent has been left undone to make perfect this midsummer night dream of pleasure.

And in the midst of all this luxury sits Croesus, and his wife, and as Croesus watches and the bubbles rise in his frapped champagne and listens to the last strain of the "Beautiful Lady" waltz he gives it as his opinion that Summer isn't so disagreeable, after all, and Mrs. Croesus draws her fancy wrap a little about her bare shoulders to protect them from the artificial wind that is playing upon her, and wonders, idly, if it is very hot down in the tenements, where that other roof garden is, and says she is glad she left her children at the seashore with the governess, and that really a roof garden is great fun—in the City of Splendid Night.

Taking Your Sleep in Doses

THE latest idea for keeping perfectly fit and healthy is not to take your sleep in "one long dose."

Instead of, say, always going to bed at 11 p. m. and rising at 7 a. m., divide your sleeping hours into two portions, as, for instance, from 6 p. m. to 8:30 p. m. (first sleep) and from 2 a. m. to 6:30 a. m. in the second sleep.

This method of sleeping in "watches" gives the brain—for all those who do mental work—just the stimulus needed, and promotes fresh energy and vigor to both mind and body.

A doctor who is a serious advocate of sleeping in watches gave the above interesting theory.

"Every man and woman whose work requires a large expenditure of mental energy should divide his or her sleeping hours into two," he said.

"I am acquainted with many people who now always take their sleep in two 'doses,' and they will tell you what a vast improvement it is on the usual rule of one long sleep in the twenty-four hours.

"The ideal times of sleep for the brain worker are the afternoon and the early hours of the morning. Of course this program could only be carried out by the woman whose time is her own."

Synopsis of Preceding Instalments

SIR IAN and Lady Hereward, while visiting their neighbor, Mrs. Forestier, learn accidentally of the presence in England of Teresina Ricardo, a beautiful young girl, with whom Sir Ian was infatuated while in India prior to his marriage.

"She has decided to pay you a surprise visit this very day," says Mrs. Forester.

Sir Ian and his wife hasten home to receive Miss Ricardo, but Lady Hereward leaves him when half way through the woods to Friar's Moat, explaining that she has some souvenirs to distribute among several of her tenants.

Sir Ian meets Miss Ricardo, whom he has not seen for years. She notices that he seems distressed. She explains that she is visiting her cousin's wife a few miles away, and felt compelled to visit Sir Ian and his wife, who had been her companions in former years.

Nora Verney, a daughter of the late vicar, enters just then and both notice that she is white and nervous. Miss Ricardo remarks on the prolonged absence of Lady Hereward, and Sir Ian asks Miss Verney if she saw her lady during her walk in the woods. Nora seems more agitated than ever and abruptly leaves the room, explaining that she "must change her dress for dinner."

Mrs. Barnard, wife of Tom Barnard, farmkeeper for the Herewards, is attending to her household duties with little Poppet, six years old, playing at her knee, when Miss Craigie, Lady Hereward's maid, calls to make a visit at the Barnard lodge. Tom Barnard, who was a soldier under Colonel Hereward and idolizes his old chieftain, is away at the village. The Barnards live under the shadow of an old stone tower, which was built to afford the countryside a wonderful view of the hills in the distance.

Miss Craigie has succeeded Liane, a French maid, who has mysteriously disappeared. She tells Mrs. Barnard that Lady Hereward suspects Mr. Barr, at one time steward under Sir Ian, has something to do with the girl's disappearance. Miss Craigie is bitter toward Lady Hereward because she bitterly bewails the loss of Liane.

Mrs. Barnard tells Miss Craigie the history of Ian Barr. The old uncle of Sir Ian Hereward married an Italian opera singer. They separated, and then without learning whether his first wife was alive or not old Sir Ian married an Irish peasant girl. Ian Barr was born to them, the boy taking the name of Barr when he learned that his father's first wife was alive. Ian Barr quarreled with old Sir Ian when he (Ian Barr) learned of his father's deception, and was cut off in the will, everything being left to Sir Ian Hereward, a nephew, when the old man died. Sir Ian tried to get Ian Barr to accept the fortune, but the latter refused and was subsequently persuaded to take the place of steward on the estate.

Mrs. Barnard repeats her suspicion that Ian Barr was in love with the maid, Liane, but that Miss Verney was in love with Ian Barr. She tells Miss Craigie to make up her quarrel with Edward, the footman, and while they are speaking they hear two shots in the woods. Mrs. Barnard declares the shots are keepers killing rabbits.

Miss Craigie goes and shortly afterward Sir Ian appears and asks for Tom. His face is white, and he cries out that his wife has been killed.

TO-DAY'S INSTALMENT

"I DON'T know," the dreary voice answered, and the eyes that saw a nightmare turned toward the woods, where, far away, the crown of the Tower rose among the dark pines.

Rose guessed what was in his mind. "No, no, sir," she said firmly. "You mustn't go back there alone, whatever it is. It wouldn't do, on any account, especially if—if it's an affair for the police."

"What does it matter?" he murmured, as though to himself. "I can't leave her there alone—any longer. Go send the man to Riding St. Mary."

Mrs. Barnard went; and when she came back, Sir Ian Hereward had gone.

It was not until she stood in the arbour, gazing down the path toward the open gate, wishing with all her soul for Tom to come, that she remembered the two shots in the woods which Kate Craigie had said "sounded queer."

What if —— But no, such things did not happen in this sweet quiet country which she loved. Such things could not happen to a great lady, a good lady, like Lady Hereward.

Barnard to Aid

Up the path came Tom Barnard, wheeling the somewhat old-fashioned bicycle, which he had bought second-hand. From behind the saddle dangled two or three little brown paper parcels which he had brought back from London (whither he journeyed very seldom) to give pleasure to Rose and Poppet.

At sight of the familiar and well-loved figure Mrs. Barnard's self-control suddenly snapped, and she broke into hysterical crying as she ran down the path, holding out both hands like a child, to the one she best loved and trusted.

"Why, little woman!" exclaimed the farmer, alarmed at such an unaccustomed display of emotion. "Nothing wrong with the baby?"

"No—no." And then the story came tumbling from her lips anyhow, in strange confusion, choked with sobs. How Poppet had screamed, and the Colonel was there, covered with blood—no, not covered, but there was a lot. And he could hardly speak, so she dared not ask questions; but he said her ladyship was dead, and he wanted Tom; and Jimmy Russell had gone on her (Rose's) bicycle for the doctor and the police—yes, the police; she wasn't mistaken. And whatever it was was up by the Tower. She wanted the Colonel to stop, but he wouldn't—so she supposed.

Tom waited for no more. Leaving the bicycle, with its dangling parcels, against the arbor, without another question or word to his wife he turned on his heel and ran down the path with great loping strides which would take him up the hill to the Tower at the rate of a mile in eight minutes. It was enough for him that his adored Colonel was in trouble, and was to be found near the Tower; he wanted to know nothing further, for it was dreadful to Tom Barnard that Sir Ian had come in vain to seek his help. If he could have been transported in that instant to the Tower, without having to waste a moment by the way in getting there, he would have given months of his life, even months of happiness with Rose and the child; for Tom owed the good fortune of years past and present to Sir Ian, and no sacrifice would be sacrifice, if made for him.

The Narrow Path

On the side of the road opposite the farmhouse gate was a gate which led to a private path through the woods. There was a notice tacked to a tree near by, stating that trespassers would be prosecuted; but nobody ever had been prosecuted within the memory of man. The gate was kept locked, but it was easy for a man to vault over it. Sir Ian Hereward had no doubt done so, in coming to the farm with his tragic news, and again on returning to the woods. Tom Barnard followed his example, for though he had a key which fitted the rusty padlock, it did not even occur to him to stop and get it.

The narrow path was made narrower still by the intrusion of bracken from either side, and was overhung by the branches of low-growing beech and ash trees. A little distance from the road it divided, going to the right toward the cottage of the head keeper, and mounting the hill straight ahead, with few windings toward the Tower. The windless air seemed to Barnard to be pressed down by the trees until it weighed heavy as a pall upon his head. He had looked forward to the refreshment of coming back into the country after the heat and dust of London; and he had come to this! His temples throbbed, and the green light in the silent woods gave no ease to his eyes, which saw red, as if they peeped through a network of bloodshot veins. The crackling of tiny branches and last year's pine-cones under his feet only emphasized the stillness and made it terrible to him for the first time in his recollection. It was as if the woods whispered of the secret that he was on his way to find out, a secret of horror, which it seemed unnatural that such a fairy place should harbor.

Barnard did not consciously think these thoughts, yet they beat in his brain, and it was the hammering of them against his temples which made his head throb as if it might burst.

What They Found

Fast as he walked, crashing through all obstacles, such as flowering bushes and boughs of young trees, the time he took in gaining the top of the hill was almost interminable to him. But at last he reached the plateau where, seen down a green vista between two evenly planted avenues of pines, rose the stone tower. Beyond there was a drop, which gave to the hill an effect of great height, as if it stood like a great ship in the midst of the billowy blue sea which meant the rising and falling land of three counties. As Barnard entered the avenue of trees, a figure moved at the far end, showing black for an instant against the faint violet drop-curtain of mingling sky and landscape. Others might not have recognized it at that distance, but Tom did. It was the form of Sir Ian Hereward; and Tom called encouragingly, "I'm coming, sir!" Then he started to run faster, breathing hard; and the sweat that came out on his forehead felt cold, not hot, as he ran though the air was dead even on the height.

Sir Ian came to meet him, with long steps, and though he was very pale, with set jaws, the curious nightmare-dread of what he might have to find at the Tower suddenly became less acute for Barnard as he saw his old Colonel's face.

"I wanted you, Tom," said Sir Ian. "You were the only man I ——" he could not finish.

"I'm here, sir," answered Barnard. "I came the instant I got home."

"Yes, I knew you would. Your wife told you what——"

"As well as she could, sir. Something has happened to her ladyship——"

"She is dead. I came to look for her, and I found—this."

He turned, facing toward the Tower as if by an effort, and walking with his head down. Tom followed, catching up with him, and keeping by his side.

To Be Continued To-morrow

"The Vanity Box" is running serially in the daily and Sunday AMERICAN. A liberal instalment of this remarkable mystery novel will be printed in the Sunday AMERICAN

Freckles

Who Likes to be Called Freckle-Face? Do You?

There wouldn't be many freckles at all if people would only use Kintho right away. That's the way to get rid of them easily. If people are calling you Freckle-Face get a two-ounce package right away at Houghton & Dutton or Riker-Jaynes, or wherever toilet goods are sold, and fool them. Freckles certainly don't add to any one's beauty, and no one need tolerate them. Kintho is guaranteed to remove even the worst freckles, or money back.

"Use Kintho Soap too. It will not only help give the freckles a push, but it is delightful for toilet use."

Quite True

AT a religious meeting a lady persisted in standing on a bench, thus spoiling the view of others, though repeatedly requested to sit down. An old gentleman at last rose and said, gravely:

"I think if the lady knew that she had a large hole in each of her stockings she would not exhibit herself in this way."

This had the desired effect; she immediately sank down on her seat. A young minister standing by blushed to the temples and said:

"Oh, brother, how could you say what was not a fact?"

"Not a fact!" replied the old gentleman. "If she had not had a large hole in each of her stockings I would like to know how she gets them on."

The Fitness of Woman to Vote

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

THE great battles woman have fought and won have won her no fame for the reason that since time began she has done her hardest fighting in convincing her husband that every defeat isn't a Waterloo.

She has done her fighting in obscurity and reaped the rewards in retirement, and the rewards have been only so much of the glory as her husband was willing to reflect on her.

He gets up the street parades of life and they are always late; she gets up three parades a day, his meals and it rarely happens they are not on time.

He talks of her unfitness for the fight to step into a booth and deposit a ballot, but no woman was ever yet known to blow out gas, or be buncoed by a man who wanted to borrow money to pay a freight bill.

If she has a roll of money with her, does she flash it when she wants to buy a cake of chewing gum?

Isn't it a fact that she is wiser with money than a man and more to be trusted?

Instead of a woman requiring a man along to protect her, does not the daily news prove that every man who goes away from home should have a woman to serve as guardian, and keep him from making a bigger fool of himself than he naturally is?

When his day's work is done, and it is never done better than a woman could have done it with his training, he does nothing when he rests.

When her day's work is done, and he could never do it as well and patiently if trained to it all his life, she rests while she darns stockings or sews.

If, in his gallantry, he gives her the rocking chair, the privilege of holding the baby goes with it.

If, outside the home, she knows any rewards he demands the power of limitation.

He credits her with the sense of judgment needed to raise his children, and doesn't think she has the sense and judgment to vote as sanely as an imbecile man.

Of all created beings a woman has most deeply at heart the welfare of the next generation; of all created beings she would lead in eliminating SELF in making out her ballot, yet man, whose conditions her ballot would be steadfastly cast to improve, denies her the privilege.

Man, in public life, as at home, is like a child that doesn't know what is for its own good.

Detected Him

"LAST Sunday," said the clergyman to his congregation, "some one put a button in the collection-bag. I won't mention names. I will merely say that only one individual in the congregation could have done so, and I shall expect the said member, after the service, to replace the button with a coin of the realm."

After the service a well-to-do but close-fisted individual sought an interview with the clergyman in the vestry.

"I—er," he began, hesitatingly, "must apologize, sir, for the—er—button incident, which I can assure you was quite an accident. I happened to have the button in my waistcoat pocket together with a quarter, and took out the former by mistake. However, sir, here is the quarter."

"Thank you," said the clergyman, taking the quarter and gravely handing him the button.

"By the by, sir," said the close-fisted individual, "I cannot understand how you should have known that it was I who—er—committed the—er—much-to-be-regretted mistake."

"I didn't know," replied the clergyman.

"Didn't know! But you said, sir, that only one individual in the congregation could have done so."

"Just so. You see, sir, it is scarcely possible that two individuals could have put one button in the bag, is it not?"

The button-contributor hurriedly bade the clergyman good-day, and yearned to kick himself!

SOAP

A Little Sermon on Soap

LO, THE Microbe travels by Stealth, and Soap is his favorite Vehicle.

For Soap is but Fat saponified.

And Fat is like "Mother's Milk" to the Microbe, on which he thrives and multiplies and grows lusty for attack.

So that Soap is a most prolific source of Skin-Disease, as transmitted from one person to the other.

Thus saith the Eminent Physicians.

Now, Pure Soap is not excepted from this danger.

Because Pure Soap is but pure Fat saponified, while impure Soap is but decaying Fat embalmed and masked by cheap perfumes.

Such are the Microbe Vehicles applied daily to the Skins of millions who would be clean if they understood.

❧ ❧

But Soap can be made Safe and Healing, as well as Pure.

Resinol Soap, for instance, is pure Soap plus a little something fatal to the Disease Germ that makes him hate his home and leave it.

That something is "Resinol," a Skin Specific widely prescribed by the Medical Profession.

"Resinol" is soothing, healing and germ-destroying.

It stops itching from any cause instantly. It dispels redness or irritation of the Skin like magic, and heals old sores that have not responded to any other treatment.

Such is the "Something Plus" you get in Resinol Soap over other pure Soaps.

"Resinol" sterilizes the cake of Soap, making transmission of Skin Diseases impossible from street car straps, infected paper-money, saturated gloves, the handclasp of less fortunate persons, or from other current forms of infection.

Moreover, it heals, without further attention than the daily use of Resinol Soap, all minor scratches, "wind chaps," sunburn and the many slight abrasions of the Skin that are as open doors to infection if unfortified Soaps are used.

Resinol Soap softens the water, makes a mellow, smooth, creamy, lingering, soothing, cooling lather, and has a delightfully refreshing odor, slightly suggestive of real, old-time Russia Leather.

Get a cake to-day. It is for sale at all Drug Stores.

CLAUDE YOU ARE A HERO
DESMOND MUST NOT ESCAPE ROSAMOND, THE VILLAIN MUST DIE!
LOTS OF SPEED! THIS HOOP SNAKE WILL FLOAT ME TO SHORE WHEN THE WILD MEN SAVE ME, I WILL TRY TO STEAL FAIR ROSAMOND AGAIN
CLAUDE, YOU ARE A HERO AND I LOVE ONLY YOU. SOON AS DESMOND IS CAUGHT WE WILL BE HAPPY!
SO HE WOULD TRY TO STEAL YOU FROM ME, EH? WE MUST BRING HIM TO JUSTICE!
HA! HA! HA!
CURSES! A WHIRLPOOL! MY FLIGHT IS BLOCKED CURSES!
CURSES! CLAUDE HAS ARRIVED AND HE IS GOING TO LASSO ME!
HORRORS, FOILED BY THE SNAKE, I MUST RELEASE THE ROPE
OYSGEPOOTZT POLKEY MOSZINKEL!
GREAT SLASHING! BUT I DEFY THEM. I WILL FIGHT FOR YOU, MY ROSAMOND!
SURRENDER, CLAUDE ECLAIRE WE HAVE A FINE DEATH PLANNED FOR YOU
HERSHFIELD

When Desperate Desmond and the hoop snake strike the water in their fall from the broken trunk, the hoop snake, perhaps recognizing in Desmond a kindred spirit, wraps itself around him in a barrel-hoop hug and starts rolling for hors. This is naturally pie for the villain, who hopes to reach the shore and thus escape the righteous wrath of the wronged Claude.

After the rolling snake go Claude and his Rosamond. Wildly Claude rows in the hope of cutting off Desmond before he can obtain aid from his Wild Men, but a stern chase, as the saying is, is a long chase. Consequently we should always remember that we should never allow any one to get too much start on us. On the other hand, remember that victory has often been snatched from defeat.

"Merrily we roll along, across the dark blue sea." This might have been the song of Desmond, as he and the hoop snake spin across the surface. But the sea is notoriously treacherous. Right in front of the villain is a tremendous whirlpool, revolving at terrific speed. Nothing can now prevent the hoop snake from rolling into this new danger. Once in the grasp of the maelstrom all hope is gone.

But see! The hoop snake is whooping it up in one direction, the whirlpool in another. As both are moving at the same speed in opposite ways, Desmond remains absolutely stationary! This is Claude's opportunity, and he quickly rows to the edge of the whirling waters. Here he puts a loop in the boat's rope and hurls it across the eddy in an attempt to lasso his cruel foe.

Claude's attempt at cowboy tactics proves successful—in a way. He drops the noose around Desmond, and apparently has his enemy captured once more. Our hero, however, was in too great a hurry. He forgot that the snake can crawl along a rope, but he is soon reminded of the fact. The hoop snake quickly starts up the line for the boat, and, to save Rosamond, Claude cuts the rope.

From all sides come the Wild Men. "I'm the boy!" cries Desperate Desmond, as his friends pick him up and put him in their boat and away they start after Claude, who now has to flee for safety with his beloved Rosamond. It is another terrific race between the forces of right and wrong, with wrong holding the winning hand. Who will eventually triumph? To-morrow's pictures will tell.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DO NOT DOUBT HIM

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am seventeen, considered very good looking, and in love with a young man five years my senior. I feel that he likes me because when we meet he seems to think of nothing but me. However, he comes to see me but once a week. We call each other up every day and write. He lives quite some distance away. I leave business at 6 p. m. He claims that is too late for him to wait after office hours to meet me.

Now, Miss Fairfax, don't you think, if he really loved me, he would come to see me oftener, when he is in the city every day. My friends tell me he is making a fool of me. F. L. B.

YOU alone can tell if he is sincere in his love. It is very wrong to doubt him without any reason, for, in so doing, you are questioning his honor.

Do not demand too much of him and, above all, remember that real love is based fundamentally on absolute confidence.

QUESTION OF ESCORT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Two young men arranged to visit a play, and A suggested that he would take his cousin, a young woman who was visiting his home.

While leaving the theatre B met two women friends, who had been to see the play and were going home without escorts, and in opposite directions.

A met one of the girls later and she declared she did not think B a gentleman because he failed to escort them home. She pointed out that it was not he but his friend, who took the young lad[illegible] to the theatre.

I [illegible] had a talk with B about this [illegible]. he claims it would not have be[illegible] proper for him to break away from his friend A and the young lady to take the girls home, as the young woman had written him that week stating she had accepted her cousin's invitation to the theatre only because she knew he (B) would be there.

Was he right in acting as he did, and what is the proper procedure in such matters? T. G.

A GENTLEMAN is distinguished principally by his kindness and forethought toward women. In this case a man's sense of duty should have compelled him to take care of two young girls alone at night.

B could have arranged in some way to have them safely conducted to their house even if he was unable to see to it himself. He was invited to the theatre and undoubtedly felt it necessary to stay with his party.

The question might have been settled had A offered to take the two young girls home, leaving B to look after the first young girl.

INSULT IN LETTER

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Recently I received a letter from a young man, whom I met at a party. I felt highly insulted at the way he wrote.

Should I answer such a letter and explain things to him, or should let the whole matter drop? I feel like never meeting him again.

A CONSTANT READER.

NO, do not answer the letter. Have nothing more to do with him. He had no right to write to you in such a manner. There is no better way to make him realize what he has done than by absolutely ignoring him.

Winning Success

What Is Success

By THOMAS TAPPER.

THE following, which has been sent to me, raises a question that is interesting to every one who is anxious to succeed:

I read your Winning Success with much pleasure and profit. Please tell me what is the best kind of success to aim for. A MECHANIC.

This is an important question. There are probably as many different ideas of Success in the world as there are people who think of it. To one man Success is getting a home and providing for his family; to another, it is money, and more and more money; to another, it is fine clothes, or an education, or a raise in pay.

Actually, none of these spells true Success. A man is only partially successful who tries hard to get things. Success is not getting, it is doing. Hence, we may say to the "Mechanic" this:

Success is not what a man gets from the world, but what he gives to the world.

Real Success is not labor. It is service.

Real Success is not owning. It is dispensing, giving freely for the general good.

Real Success is not the piling up of property. It is making a record of deeds done for the sake of others.

Is this a new idea regarding Success?

Not at all.

Socrates, the Athenian philosopher, practiced this all his life. He endured great poverty in order that he might be free to teach the young men of Athens the right way to live. And he taught them without payment.

Many a great teacher of olden times did the same thing.

Pestalozzi, who lived in the eighteenth century, gave his life over to the teaching of children. He often divided the little food he had for himself with them. And he, too, endured great poverty that he might benefit others.

Faraday, the scientist, had an opportunity once either to be wealthy or to give his life to science (by which he helped others), and he did not choose the money.

I know a professor of Greek and Latin who works for a very small salary in a college town where his work has great value, and where his influence on young men is far-reaching. He has been frequently offered three times what he gets by famous institutions. But he never considered those offers because he knows that working where he is, he does the most good possible to others who need his influence, while in a great university he might not be able to wield his influence so practically.

If you will review these few cases (and there are thousands of others in history) you will learn these facts:

1. Socrates preferred to teach the art of right living to having money.

2. Pestalozzi loved children so much that poverty did not frighten him.

3. Faraday preferred to work as a scientist for the benefit of mankind, rather than be wealthy.

4. The professor lived to help young men, not to treble his salary.

It ought to be a cheerful message to "Mechanic" and to everybody else to know that such people exist. The world is full of them. To a true-minded man, the pride he has in his work and in the good it contributes to the human race is far ahead of love for money and possessions.

Such a point of view in regard to Success will make a man of any one of us. A young Edinburgh man of fashion and riches once rebuked Robert Burns for greeting a farmer in the fields as he passed.

"Why, you blockhead," said Burns, "I am not greeting the coat and hat, but the man. He is a true man, and he would weigh down ten of us in real worth, any day."

Great as Michelangelo became, he had pride only in what he did. He lived very simply, eating a little bread and drinking the native Italian wine, and working harder than a laborer. He was very fond of a picture that represented an old man in a coat with an hourglass on it. On it was the inscription, "I am still learning."

The Gun Runner

Synopsis of Preceding Instalments

GUSTAV LINGG, wireless operator on the steamer Laminian, goes ashore for a stroll while his ship is loading at her dock in New York and becomes lost when a dense fog sweeps up from the bay. On a side street he meets a beautiful young woman, whom he has never seen before, and who calls him by name. "I want to talk with you," she says. "I must talk with you—alone."

Lingg, abashed, stares at her boobishly for a moment and then turns and flees. He goes a long way and finally, just as a ferry whistle tells him that he is nearing the river, he enters a narrow street, only to find his way blocked by a cab, a cab with an open door.

In the cab sits the woman from whom he had fled. "I wanted to warn you," she says, and makes him enter the cab.

"Of what?" he asks, as the cab starts.

"Not to sail on the Laminian."

He asks why not and she replies that it will not be safe. He apparently doubts her and she pleads with him. Finally she asks him to kiss her, and as he draws away from her, throws her arms around his neck. In the midst of his struggles the door of the cab opens and a man drags him into the street. A crowd gathers and a policeman appears, who begins clubbing his assailant. Then another man appears, who flings off the policeman and puts the dazed operator back into the cab, calling out to the driver:

"To the police station, straight!"

The man who had attacked the operator then tells the bewildered policeman that the man who has just driven off in the cab with Lingg is one of Wilkie's men and that the woman is also in the secret service.

The scene changes to the deck of the steamship Laminian. A big-shouldered man in a raincoat wants to send a message but the operator tells him the wireless apparatus is out of order and that he can't do any sending until he fixes it.

The captain calls to the operator to hurry up and get his apparatus in shape. Through the mist can be seen an approaching warship. The man in the raincoat paces the deck, now and then stopping to glance in at the wireless apparatus.

TO-DAY'S INSTALMENT

THEN seeing that the operator had taken off his ear-phones and was leaning back in his canvas chair, giving his open and undivided attention to the tea and coffee-cake, the stranger came to a sto[illegible] and leaned companionably against the jamb of the open door.

The young man glanced up at the huge figure darkening his cabin. He did so with no outward sign of emotion.

He had, apparently, become inured to the wondering eyes of the passengers, and he had his own ends to pursue. So he went on with his coffee-cake in silence.

Two Messages

"Could you take those messages of mine now?" asked the man in the raincoat.

"Any old time now," answered the operator, without so much as a second glance.

"I settle for it with you, don't I?" asked the stranger, drawing out a roll of bills. The formidable dimensions of that roll were lost on the man bending over the teacup.

"Leave your name and cabin number, and pay the purser. They don't seem to trust operators on this floating palace! All I do is stamp the time-check on the message and send it out."

He took the two messages, stamped them, and read them aloud, before pencilling the number of words on a corner of each sheet and stabbing it on his "send" hook. He read, perfunctorily:

Varrel, Sixty Wall Street, New York.

Our man on board Laminian bound Puerto Locombia. Wire Washington. Will have him held by authorities to await instructions. DUFFY.

The second message he read off quite as hastily and with equal nonchalance:

Doctor Bernardo Morales, Mobile.

Advise Charleston wireless to relay Laminian southward bound if shipment of laundry equipment and steel ties left Mobile for Ganley and date of sailing. MICHAEL DUFFY.

The stranger waited a moment at the door, as though expecting some further word or movement from the operator.

But the man of the key was already busy over his "tuner." So the stranger in the raincoat turned away, with a look of mild exasperation in his predaceous and puzzled little eyes.

No Message

It was four hours later that the man in the raincoat reappeared on the bridge deck. The night was thick, and McKinnon, the operator, worked with his coat off and his door hooked back against the wall-plates.

He looked up for only a moment as he saw the huge figure once more confronting him. The stranger, unrebuffed by his silence, stepped calmly inside.

"Anything come in over this machinery o' yours' for me" he inquired as he took out a cigar, pushed his hat back on his head, and struck a light. The operator looked up with his habitually abstracted and unseeing stare.

"What's the name?" he asked, once more studying his "tuner."

The other was indignantly silent for a moment; then he laughed a little, forgivingly. "Duffy," he answered, "Michael Duffy."

The operator shook his head; the movement was followed by another minute or two of silence.

"It might've come under the name of Cody, Richard Cody," explained the intruder. Something in the younger man's smile caused him to add: "You see, that's our firm name, Duffy & Cody."

An alias, south of the twentieth parallel, often enough carries its own explanation. The Laminian's bow was pointing towards a land of patriots where a change of name only too often synchronised with a change of continents.

But McKinnon merely gave a shake of the head. It was several minutes before he glanced about at the other man, with a closeness of scrutiny that might have been impertinent had it seemed less frankly impersonal.

"There's nothing in for passengers this trip," he announced as he turned back to his "tuner." He drummed impatiently on the table-edge for a moment before re-adjusting his helmet-receiver. But the huge-shouldered intruder was not to be so easily shaken off.

Anty Drudge's Way the Only Way.

Mrs. Dainty—"I feel like crying, Anty! Look at these fine little white frocks I made the baby. They are literally eaten through by the strong stuff my washwoman puts in the water to bleach the clothes."

Anty Drudge—"Have your washing done at home with Fels-Naptha soap, and you need have no fear of the daintiest, sheerest articles being spoiled. And they will be pure and white, too."

Save the clothes by using Fels-Naptha soap.

Half the life of clothes goes in the washtub under old-fashioned washday methods. It is hard rubbing that wears out the fabric. Just as scuffing on the floor makes holes in the youngster's stockings, the friction of the washboard wears out the clothes. The week's darning shows you the effect on the boy's stockings. The wear of the washboard is not so easy to detect. But it is just as certain.

Why waste your strength wearing out the week's wash? Think how Fels-Naptha soap saves the clothes. The wash is soaked in cool or lukewarm water for 30 minutes while Fels-Naptha loosens every particle of dirt. Light rubbing and rinsing make the clothes clean, and sweet and white. Follow directions on the red and green wrapper.

FOSS MAY URGE EMPLOYERS BILL

A special message from Governor Foss—his 79th—is expected in the Legislature upon the subject of the workingmen's compensation measure. This bill is in danger of being sent over to the next General Court. The Governor has been in conference with members of the Legislature to determine whether it would be advisable at this time to urge that the bill be enacted.

Next to the taxation measure the Governor believes that the workingmen's compensation bill is the most important measure before the Legislature this year.

There are a number of appropriation bills pending, which will undoubtedly be vetoed by the Governor. This situation will probably hold both branches in session until Thursday.

Although the Governor would like to revive the New Haven tunnel bill, there is very little possibility that the Legislature will consider this measure before it adjourns.

Governor Foss will not make any of his appointments, in all probability, until after prorogation.

HILL TELLS HOW TO END TRUSTS

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 17.—"There would be no trusts, in the accepted meaning of the term," said James J. Hill to-day. "If we had a federal law requiring every corporation to prove that its capital stock is fully paid before it is allowed to do business in any of the States. That would prevent false inflation of values and the wide sale of stock in enterprises that are not solidly founded.

"There is plenty of money in the country and it is now offered at a low rate of interest for short time loans, but little of it seems to be going into the creation of new business enterprises. On the contrary, much of our money is going to foreign lands for investment."

Regarding crop conditions, Mr. Hill said he had not been home long enough to get an adequate idea of the situation all over the country.

"From what I have learned, however," he said, "I do not think the whole crop of the country would be sufficient to lend any great degree of animation to the industries of the nation.

"Along our line conditions are fair, but spotted. In western North Dakota crops will be affected by the drought. Montana is good and northern Minnesota is good. South Dakota is in bad shape."

Mr. Hill was pleased at the favorable turn the reciprocity question has taken in the special session of Congress, and believes the lowering of the tariff wall between this country and Canada will prove of almost inestimable value to the United States, and especially to the Northwest.

"The people of this country," he said, "must adopt a more sane attitude toward our larger business enterprises, and wiser laws must be devised for their regulation," he concluded.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

STOCK OPENING IS IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, July 17.—Although prices were somewhat irregular at the opening of the stock market to-day, most of the leading issues were fairly strong in tone and ranged fractionally above Saturday's close.

Business was moderately active in the first few minutes of trading, but soon became very quiet, with prices receding slightly and a sagging tendency in evidence.

Among the advances shown in the opening were the following: Steel common ¼, Union Pacific ⅜, Southern Pacific ⅜, Southern Railway ¼, Canadian Pacific ⅜, Pennsylvania ¼, Reading ⅜, Atchison ¼, B. O. ⅜, Erie common ¼, Erie pfd. ⅜.

The curb market opened quiet and unchanged. Standard Oil was quoted at 660 bid, 666 asked and American Tobacco at 390 bid, 395 asked. Americans were harder in the London market, with Canadian Pacific about the firmest feature.

WAITERS ASK MORE PAY; SHORTER HOURS

Boston union waiters are after an increase in pay. Boston Waiters' Union 80 has taken final action on the matter. The request for more money is the first in seven years. They were sent to the C. L. U. and the International office for indorsement. The Central Labor Union indorsed the request at its meeting Sunday. Only a slight increase in wages is called for and four hours a week less in the working schedule. Little trouble is expected by the union in securing all it asks for.

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

Tens of millions of idle money are available in the banks for market activity when the proper time arrives, and the gold mines of the world are adding fresh millions to this supply every day.

$ $ $

The complaint most common in State Street is lack of commission business. Nobody can complain of the stability of the market. The investor is not suffering nor is the speculator. Nobody whose presence will be desirable in the stock market is being hurt.

$ $ $

Crop uncertainty still causes natural hesitation. But underneath it all there is unquestionably a better sentiment. It is felt that conditions are slowly shaping themselves for better times. There is a normal amount of business doing. The fact is we are equipped for doing a much greater amount of work, and because there is not a demand for the largest production possible, we call it dull.

$ $ $

There is certainly a better tone in iron and steel and in copper. The New England textile factories have started up again. The prospect of a record cotton crop is a stimulating factor. If crops harvest well, as seems probable, we should begin to feel this fall the effects of the large continued liquidation, depression and economy. The future holds out great promise.

$ $ $

During the stock market's vacation, the big people are resting easily, making no attempt to liquidate securities, but believing that just as soon as the crops are out of danger, business will gradually revive and the market become more and more active, until there develops a broad speculative campaign equal to anything ever seen.

$ $ $

One cheering development is the investigation of the Department of Justice at Washington. It may be a political move with a double meaning, just as other investigations have been, but at least this one is attracting public attention to the enormous sum squandered on investigations. The Steel Trust investigation cost more than $700,000, and it brought no more information than could have been obtained by the purchase of a financial manual for $10. The suspicion is growing that investigations are designed chiefly to furnish employment for persons who have performed political services, and for whom there are no regular places in the national government.

Every day furnishes new proof that the politicians are working for campaign material rather than for the public good. For instance, the suit against the Union Pacific and the Southern Pacific was started for political purposes. The government lost in the recent decision. It has not announced an appeal to the Supreme Court, as it ought to do, but will wait until there is some excitement in a political way, and then probably will make a big noise and prove its alleged fidelity to the public's interest by making a theatrical announcement of an appeal. The appeal should be made at once if at all, or announcement should be made that there will be none.

April, May, June and July have been squandered by the America Congress doing a piece of work that should have been finished in ten days. When Congress met, April 6, every member knew exactly what the country wanted in regard to reciprocity. Both parties are pledged to the tariff reform, and it is no longer a political issue. If done properly, it will not disturb trade, but it begins to look as though trade would be victimized by the politicians for many months.

$ $ $

It is predicted in some quarters in Pittsburg that railroad buying in iron and steel will reach forty per cent. of the total capacity of the industry before the close of the present quarter. The buying movement in railroad equipment and supplies is showing staying qualities. Railroads are at the end of their rope in the matter of low stocks of supplies and delayed maintenance of track and equipment. Rail production already is heavy compared with last Winter and Spring, there having been large specifications during the past few weeks against contracts placed months ago, in addition to the new business booked, on much of which prompt deliveries are specially urged.

$ $ $

Sewall & Woodworth, members of the Boston Stock Exchange, issue a circular of copper share statistics. The matter contained is conveniently arranged, and gives the location and controlling interests of each mine.

The Lion Hill Consolidated Mines, the stock of which will be traded on the Boston Curb Exchange for the first time to-morrow, is located at Ophir, Tooele County, Utah. The ore is siliceous silver-lead and is required as a flux by the United States Smelting & Refining Company, the American Smelting & Refining and the International Smelters, which are all within a radius of twenty-seven miles by railroad.

TO REVEAL ALL AT STOKES TRIAL

NEW YORK, July 17.—Nothing can be hushed up in the now famous Stokes case and, according to Clark L. Jordan, one of counsel for Lillian Graham and Ethel Conrad, accused of trying to kill the millionaire proprietor of the Ansonia, the trial of the two girls will bring out sensational details of the relations between Stokes and the young chorus girl defendants.

"We did not give all of our defense in the hearing before Magistrate Freschi," said Mr. Jordan to-day. "We have plenty of testimony that will not gladden the heart of Mr. Stokes. We knew that the girls would be held for trial whatever evidence they might have put in, and we also knew that if they were discharged by the magistrate an indictment would hang over their heads for years. The District Attorney at any time could have brought them to trial despite their discharge by the magistrate.

"The proper place to make a defence is before a jury of twelve honest American citizens and we will put in our evidence for the defence before a jury.

Girl "Afraid of Him."

"We will show that Lillian Graham went to school in California and that she came to New York and lived with her sister, Mrs. Singleton, in the Ansonia. There Stokes met her and he showered attentions on her. The girl wanted to be a great actress and studied hard to be one. Stokes took the part of a fatherly adviser, and when Mrs. Singleton went to Paris he kept on with his attentions to Miss Graham.

"Miss Graham did not want his attentions and she was afraid of his advances. She left the hotel and rejoined her sister in Paris. She did not leave her address with Stokes, but he managed to get it in some way and sent her money, telling her to buy something pretty for herself. He had given her flowers, dinner parties and had loaned her his automobile. His attitude to her will be brought out very clearly.

"Stokes is a man of the world. Miss Graham was an innocent young girl. We will show just how much effort he made to get in the graces of Miss Graham and how he failed."

Mr. Jordan said that he would show that Miss Graham never took money from Stokes. The girl had saved some money and an effort will be made to show that she had given it to Stokes to invest for her so that she might have some return from it. Some of the missing letters written by Stokes to Miss Graham are said to contain reference to this invested money.

Remained Up All Night.

"After her return from Paris," said Mr. Jordan to-day, "Miss Graham joined a stock company and went to Nashville with it to play. While there Stokes wrote to her, offering her a position in New York and inviting her to a house party at his stock farm in Lexington, Ky. Miss Graham accepted the invitation and arrived there in the afternoon. There were no guests. Stokes explained that the guests would arrive later. They did not arrive and Miss Graham remained up all night, keeping a servant by her side. She left the place next morning.

"Then Stokes turned to Miss Conrad and began to be attentive to her, incidentally saying things about Miss Graham that hurt her to the quick when she heard of them. He told Miss Conrad that Miss Graham had some of his letters and that he wanted them back.

"Finally Stokes went to the Varuna apartment of the two girls and in the belief that Miss Conrad was there alone. He expected to be alone with Miss Conrad and get the letters. Instead, he found Miss Graham there. The defence will endeavor to prove that Stokes attacked Miss Graham and tried to choke her. They struggled about the room and finally to the desk where was a pistol. Miss Graham, to save herself, got the pistol and fired. Miss Conrad heard the shots and thought that Stokes had fired them at Miss Graham. She got her pistol and fired at the man attacking her friend.

"Then came the visit of Cummings, the detective for Stokes, and the disappearance of the most important letters in the case. The case for the two girls will be fought to the limit and we are confident that a jury will exonerate them. There is a great deal of our evidence we cannot make public now. But it will make the trial one of the most interesting that ever resulted from an affair of this sort."

PRIEST INJURED FIGHTING BLAZE

The Rev. Philip J. O'Donnell, rector of St. Philip's Catholic Church, Harrison avenue and East Lenox street, is recovering to-day from being overcome by smoke while attempting to extinguish a fire which caused $1,000 damage in the basement of the edifice. He was rescued by the Rev. Fr. Austin, one of the curates of the church.

The fire started near the shrine of St. Philip and was discovered by the janitor, George Reed. Parishioners saw flames and smoke coming from the church and rushed to the parochial residence, where they found Fr. O'Donnell and his curates at dinner. Fr. O'Donnell, Fr. Austin and Fr. O'Connell went to the church, where they found Reed fighting the fire with extinguishers. Fr. O'Connell picked up the statue of the Blessed Sacrament and took it to the parochial residence. Fr. O'Donnell and Fr. Austin kept fighting the fire with the aid of extinguishers until the arrival of the apparatus.

BOSTON PARTY MEETS KAISER

BERLIN, July 17.—To-day the members of the Boston Chamber of Commerce party and Mayor Fitzgerald are inspecting an Emperor's palace. They are in Potsdam and are looking over the imperial palace under the guidance of important and impressively uniformed major domos and other attendants.

Also they saw the Kaiser. It was a great day for the Boston men.

The members of the Boston party are thoroughly enjoying their stay in this city. They are seeing everything that is to be seen and incidentally absorbing much valuable information.

While here conferences may be held on old age pensions, accident and invalidity insurance, the supervision of factories to protect workingmen, state insurance funds and their use in building homes for toilers, tuberculosis and other hospitals for the prevention of disease, the welfare of women and children, German railroad methods and the waterway and electric power policy of the government in relation to German industries and foreign commerce.

F. J. McIsaac of the Boston AMERICAN staff, who is with the party abroad, will have a page in next Sunday's AMERICAN full of the most interesting details of the trip made by the Boston party.

GOT ROXBURY LADS IN RAID AT QUINCY

Surrounded on all sides by the police of Quincy, sixteen young residents of Roxbury made no resistance when arrested in the marshes between Atlantic and Montclair. They were arraigned in the Quincy District Court to-day on charges of gambling. They gave these names and ages: Frank J. Scott, 18; Roy Campbell, 19; James Fallon, 16; William J. Sullivan, 18; Daniel J. Coughlin, 17; James Caughham, 17; Harry Fallon, 17; Matthew J. Finn, 19; James J. Hart, 20; Thomas Rogan, 19; Daniel O'Brien, 19; Joseph Monahan, 18; Owen J. King, 19; Lawrence F. Kenney, 23; John J. O'Brien, 21; and Timothy Scannell, 23.

MORE FIREMEN ORDER UP TO-DAY

Councilman Curley will fight for the order to be introduced in the City Council today providing for fifty more men for the Boston Fire Department.

"Every day shows more and more that the conditions here are not only alarming but almost disgraceful, and I, for one, do not propose they shall continue if I can prevent it," he declared.

"Why, at the engine house nearest the recent Dorchester fire there is no engine, although there is plenty of room. No better illustration of the needs of more men and even more equipment could possibly have happened; and, while I favor the 100 additional men, as my first order called for, I am willing to compromise on fifty, if Acting Mayor Collins will ask for the transfer of money for them."

Another Big Week in the Great $10,000 Proverb Contest

Begins To-day.

Rich Rewards --- Open to All --- Anyone May Enter Contest To-day!

Another busy week begins today at the American's Proverb Contest Department. From all indications at hand, it would seem that the reprinting of all of the back pictures in yesterday's Sunday American, was taken advantage of by thousands of residents of New England who appreciate the generosity of the American's offer of such an unparalleled list of prizes as those to be awarded in the American's Proverb Contest.

No more back pictures will be reproduced in the columns of the American, but as previously announced, this contest will be open to anyone living in New England, irrespective of age, up to the day the last picture appears.

This is made possible through the American's plan to furnish those who desire them, with complete copies of the back pictures and answer blanks which appear in the American from day to day.

These back pictures allow anyone to enter at any time.

If you are not already a contestant, all you have to do is to send for any back numbers that you want, all of them if necessary, and they will be promptly forwarded to you.

The rates for the back numbers are the regular rates of the Daily and Sunday American for the days on which the pictures appear. Sunday back numbers are 5c (plus return postage); daily back numbers are 1c (plus return postage).

A copy of the PROVERB BOOK will be mailed to anyone who sends a money order for 25c to the "Contest Department, 275 Devonshire St." Those who care to, may call for same at the Contest Headquarters at the same address.

Someone is going to be the new owner of a spick and span $2,500 Seashore Bungalow, in a very short time and somewhere in New England, fortunate American readers will be the new possessors of handsome Runabout Automobiles, classy Motor Boats, beautiful Pianos, and a host of other valuable and carefully selected prizes—each one well worthy of a contest in itself.

There is no red tape in this contest. The rules are absurdly simple. You do not have to enroll, or send in your name or incur any obligation of any sort whatsoever.

You are a contestant in full standing the minute you begin to solve the puzzle pictures.

If you wish to enter the contest today, solve today's puzzle picture, and immediately send for the back numbers which you may require and they will be furnished you as directed above.

Opportunity is here in front of you, and it is a great one.

Those who have not had the foresight to grasp opportunity when it comes hammering at their doors, have only themselves to blame in a few short weeks when these magnificent prizes to the value of $10,000 will be awarded to 1,000 American readers.

Take our advice, start solving the puzzle pictures today!

Conditions of the Contest.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN PROVERB CONTEST is a contest of skill and judgment. Prizes to the amount of $10,000 will be given absolutely free by the Boston American to the winners. Every one living in New England, irrespective of age, is eligible to enter this contest.

Each set of answers must contain only one answer to each picture, but each person is entitled to send in three complete sets of answers.

The answers to the puzzle pictures may be sent in writing in longhand either with pen or pencil; they may be written on the typewriter or may be printed in any manner to suit the fancy of the contestant.

Participants in any other contest now being run or which may be run by the American will not debar any one from entering the contest.

Each contestant or any or all members of the family will be allowed to submit one, two or three sets of answers, but each set must contain only one answer to each picture. Each set will be considered separately, but no contestant can win more than one prize. All employes of the American and their families are absolutely barred from participating in this contest.

In case there are no complete lists of correct answers, prizes will be awarded to the persons submitting the nearest correct solutions. In case of a tie, award will be made on the basis of neatness and exact accuracy, but if the tie cannot be decided in that way the tied contestants will receive similar prizes.

Do not send your answers now. Keep them from day to day and at the end of the contest arrange them in numerical order and then send them all in at one time.

Under no circumstances should contestants begin to send in their answers now, as any answers sent in before the last picture is printed will not be considered.

Time will not be a factor in awarding the prizes. The first answers sent in after the contest closes will stand no better chance of winning a prize than the last answer submitted.

All answers must be delivered at the BOSTON AMERICAN CONTEST HEADQUARTERS, 275 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass., either by mail or in person, within the specified time limit. It is contemplated to give contestants ten days to two weeks after the close of the contest to prepare their answers, so that they can be sent in altogether at one time.

The American will not be responsible for the receipt of any answers unless sent by registered mail and addressed to "PROVERB CONTEST EDITOR, 275 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass."

In case contestants desire further information they should address their questions to PROVERB CONTEST EDITOR, Boston American, 275 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

There will be seventy-five puzzle pictures in the series used in the contest. The solutions of these pictures may be sent in on the coupons printed in the Daily and Sunday American, or may be written on separate slips of paper. The use of the coupon is desirable, but not necessary.

The Editor of the PROVERB CONTEST reserves the right to make any change in, or addition to, these conditions that he may deem necessary for properly conducting the contest, and his decision on any question which may arise will be absolutely final.

Hospitals for Habitual Drunkards? Certainly, Let Us Have Them

And Large Farms Where Habitual Drunkards May Be Made Into Useful Citizens?—By All Means Let Us Have Such Farms, if We Can. But Let Us Not Forget What Habitual Drunkards Really Mean

Copyright, 1911, by American-Journal-Examiner

Two very big cities in the country very recently have interested themselves in the fate of the confirmed drunkard.

In Chicago it is suggested that to catch a drunkard as you catch a mad dog on the streets, pound him with a policeman's club if he happens to be alcoholically insane, throw him into a cell where he shivers all night, lock him up with criminals, and turn him loose after a little while is not so very intelligent.

It costs money to keep drunkards locked up, arresting the same men, month after month, or even week after week. It even costs something for the clubs that beat them. It costs a great deal for the food that they eat.

And it is rather brutal to lock up the drunkard, taking what money he has in the way of a fine—if there is anything left—or sending him to jail for ten days, worrying his family, depriving his wife and children of what service he might render if he were at liberty.

Usually the drunkard is caught at the end of a debauch, when he is weakened and unable to care for himself. That is about the time when he would return home, if allowed to return home, and begin to do his best to work for his family.

In at least one civilized nation in Europe they do things better than we do here. When a man is found drunk on the streets the policeman finds out where he got his last drink. He conducts the drunkard to that institution, hires a cab and sends the drunkard home. AND MAKES THE SALOONKEEPER THAT SOLD THE LAST DRINK PAY FOR THE CAB. That, however, is too near human intelligence for us to hope that it will be adopted here.

Chicago suggests that instead of arresting a drunkard every few days, beating him more or less violently, submitting him to the horrible punishment that imprisonment means in his nervous condition, the city should organize hospitals for drunkards and try to cure them. A very good idea, if it could be done intelligently, and especially IF THE WOMEN AND CHILDREN TO WHOM THE DRUNKARD'S PRESENCE AT HOME MIGHT MEAN FOOD SHOULD BE TAKEN CARE OF IN THE MEANWHILE.

New York City suggests that there should be great farms established in the State, that the drunkards should be sent to these farms, restored to health by good food, by light outdoor work and kind treatment and then sent home.

All of these ideas are good.

But drunkenness is a disease. The chief cause of drunkenness is poverty. And next to poverty, the most certain and unfailing cause of drunkenness is wealth without occupation, the life of the social parasite.

You may have hospitals for drunkards and farms for drunkards—both good things. You may stop clubbing the unfortunate man whose disease is apparent in his faltering step and deranged mind—an excellent step toward civilization.

But the one thing that the drunkard wants you can't give him with the hospital or the drunkards' farm. Drunkenness is to be fought by fighting poverty and by fighting ignorance.

Men get drunk because they are miserable, crushed with the hardship of life or bored with the horrible monotony of toil uninterrupted by mental excitement or pleasure.

Upton Sinclair, the young man who woke up the country for a while with his story, "The Jungle," said at least one very good thing about drunkenness.

"If you had to live in hell you would get drunk if you could, wouldn't you? If you were drunk enough, at least you wouldn't know that you were in hell. And if you had to live the kind of life that nine-tenths of the drunkards live, worried, poverty-stricken and harassed, you would gladly get drunk to escape from that hell."

The man who keeps sober need not feel proud; he need not despise the unfortunate drunkard. Far better say as John Wesley said, pointing to the drunkard in the gutter, "But for the grace of God there lies John Wesley."

Whenever you see a poor drunken man you may well say to yourself, "But for the grace of God, there am I."

Drunkenness, fortunately, is decreasing. For one hopeless drunkard to-day there were ten or a hundred two centuries ago.

Higher professions in which drunkenness was the rule are practically freed from it. The fashionable doctor to-day still writes his prescriptions in an illegible hand. This habit descends from the days when the fashionable doctor WAS USUALLY DRUNK IN THE EVENING, and wrote his prescriptions illegibly because he wasn't able to write them any other way.

Newspaper men now living remember the time when it was unusual for a first-class newspaper man not to be more or less of a drunkard. And this applied to the printers as well as the writers, although rather more to the writers than to the printers. And to-day the drunken newspaper man, writer or printer, is the exception, and does not hold his job, however useful he may be when sober.

Men get drunk less often to-day BECAUSE THEY ARE BETTER PAID AND BECAUSE LIFE IS MORE INTERESTING. Cut down poverty and you will reduce drunkenness. Cut down the monotony of life and you will cut down drunkenness.

Meanwhile do what you can with your hospitals for drunkards, taking the place of policemen's clubs; and your farms for drunkards, taking the place of the workhouse or the Bridewell, where the drunkard is made the companion of the criminal, where his time is wasted and his health shattered and his family left in need because of his absence.

You Could Learn Anything in Nine Years

It Does Seem Strange, Therefore, to Read This Recommendation of a Senate Committee at the State House That There Hasn't Been Time Enough to Consider the Workmen's Compensation Act—The Agitation for This, Humanitarian Legislation Began Nine Years Ago—The Statesmen Might Have Found a More Plausible Reason for Postponement—We Suggest One

Word comes down from Beacon Hill—strange words come down from Beacon Hill at times—that the statesmen of the Senate Committee on Ways and Means have at last hit upon a good excuse for not passing the Workmen's Compensation Act this year.

The Senate Committee on Ways and Means have voted to recommend to the Senate that the Workmen's Compensation Act should be referred to the next General Court.

The reason they are said to advance for postponing this modern, progressive and humanitarian legislation is that there hasn't been time for thorough investigation and full discussion.

We would respectfully suggest to the gentlemen of the Senate Ways and Means Committee—or to speak precisely to three of them—that they try some other excuse for adopting a course which must be eminently satisfactory and highly pleasing to the lobbyists for the employers' liability insurance companies.

We would remind Chairman Levi H. Greenwood of Gardner, who, we presume, still cherishes the ambition to be President of the Senate some day; Senator Samuel Ross of New Bedford, and Senator James H. Doyle of Boston, that the fight for a Workmen's Compensation Act was begun at the State House nine years ago, and has been continued from year to year ever since.

Of course we do not know what Senators Greenwood and Ross and Doyle consider to be ample time, but we submit that nine years of agitation and postponement ought to fill every requirement of reasonable men, and we believe the people of the Commonwealth take our view of it. It may not be amiss to remind the Senators that the subject was further studied last year by a special commission appointed by former Governor Draper. That commission held public hearings in many of the larger industrial centres, and printed a book for the guidance of legislators.

This year's Workmen's Compensation Act was considered at length by the Joint Judiciary Committee. Public hearings were held. The Joint Judiciary Committee, presumably made up of the best lawyers in both branches of the Legislature, reported unanimously that the Workmen's Compensation Act ought to pass.

The bill was reported first in the House of Representatives, backed by this unanimous report of the lawyers. The House referred it to the House Committee on Ways and Means. That committee reported favorably. The House passed the bill and sent it to the Senate.

Then the Senate turned it over to the Senate Committee on Ways and Means, which, after nine years, after a special commission's tour of the State, after public hearings at the State House and after favorable action by the House, says the measure should be referred to the Legislature of next year because there hasn't been time!

And this in spite of the fact that it is specifically provided that the law shall not become effective until July 1, 1912. That gives an entire year for further consideration. It affords plenty of time for amendment by next year's Legislature.

We do not see where the members of the Senate Committee on Ways and Means have a legislative leg to stand upon. We do not believe that the Senate will compel the wage-earner of Massachusetts to make this fight all over again on the flimsy pretext of Messrs. Greenwood, Ross and Doyle that nine years isn't time enough.

This bill is one of the measures introduced by the Massachusetts State Branch, American Federation of Labor. It provides in substance that a workman injured in the ordinary course of his work shall receive half his wages until recovery. It thus divides the cost of industrial accidents between the employer and the employe, instead of compelling the impoverished workman and his family to bear all.

Latterly the fight at the State House against this splendid piece of humanitarian legislation has been conducted almost entirely by lobbyists for insurance companies. The passage of the bill would certainly and naturally affect the pockets of these companies. Would that be a good reason for saying "No!" to the crippled workman and his family? Of course it wouldn't! But it would be much more sensible than telling the workman that there hasn't been time, and expecting him to believe it.

He worked in the dark
With jimmy and mask,
And he shot as he fled
From his perilous task.

How crude were his ways!
Full dress is au fait
For the robber who'd shine
In the lists of to-day.
Slip through a window,
Look the room o'er,
Take what you fancy
And leave by the door.

When you meet the police
Shake hands and remark,
"I often go strolling
Alone after dark."
Inquire for their health
With solicitous care,
Naught is so soothing
As a kind savoir faire.

Of course you'll be caught,
But at least you can feel
That art has advanced
In your efforts to steal.
That alone in your cell
Should allay your distress;
For few of us find
A new use for full dress.

The Joys and Glooms at the Seashore—By T. E. Powers

Oh, joy! He went to the seashore! Oh, gloom! When the joys travel with us nothing is difficult and everything is beautiful. Don't miss their adventures at the seashore in
